

abovetopsecret.com
BOOK OF THREADS

How "the law of attraction" works.

January, 2008

The 75 most important topics as defined by member-flagging, that shaped the month on AboveTopSecret.com

The AboveTopSecret.com Book Of Threads

Published by The Above Network, LLC, owners and operators of:
AboveTopSecret.com
BelowTopSecret.com
AbovePolitics.com
ATSmix.com

All content copyright on the posting dates by AboveTopSecret.com,
The Above Network, LLC, and the respective post authors.

You may use the content herein under the terms of our Creative Commons Dead, linked from each post via the website.
Click on the link to the thread to obtain specific usage guidelines.

All posts from members are presented "as-is" which means that the typical "net speak" and accidental typos of an online environment will be included in this publication.

IMPORTANT: The content in this publication contains "opening posts" for discussion topics that often involve highly provocative theories on a wide range of subjects, and in most cases, have inspired hundreds of replies. Readers are urged to visit the entire discussion thread (via the provided links) for the "complete picture" on highly controversial or speculative topics, as follow-up discussion often refines, refutes, or improves the original opening post.

AboveTopSecret.com is the Internet's largest and most popular discussion board community dedicated to the intelligent exchange of ideas and debate on a wide range of "alternative topics" such as conspiracies, UFO's, paranormal, secret societies, political scandals, new world order, terrorism, and dozens of related topics with an impressive demographic mix of members.

With more than 140,000 members generating over 5 million posts of substance that cover more than 400,000 topics in 157 different discussion forums, you could say "the truth is in here."

The Motto: "Deny Ignorance"

More than a slogan and deeper than a mission statement, our members have embraced the motto of "Deny Ignorance" as our reason for being, demanding everyone who posts to aspire to a higher standard of participation. These simple two words have galvanized a broad membership base that spans the spectrum from highly speculative conspiracy writers to staunch skeptics. The result is a unique collaboration of diverse individuals rallying under this simple statement to learn from each other, discover new truths, and imagine new ideas that expand minds.

This motto has life. It has purpose. It demands ATS members to think.

It is a state of mind.

It is a sense of purpose.

It is a statement against the paradigm.

It is a rage against the mindless status-quo.

The idea of "deny ignorance" isn't a goal that ATS hopes to accomplish.
Instead, it's a challenge. A call to all those who come here to aspire to a higher state of awareness through informed discussion and debate.

Deny ignorance is what we do.

It's how we think. It's how we talk. It's how we listen.

Ignorance is the social disease of history that has clouded our minds and dulled our brains.

Is the evil that men do, the reason history repeats, and the cause of intolerance.

We deny it. it's not welcome here. Within these boundaries, it has no strength.

Here, ignorance is denied.

Contact publications@theabovenetwork.com for more information about this and other publications from AboveTopSecret.com

PUBLICATION DATE: DECEMBER, 2008

Table of Contents For January, 2008

1. How "the law of attraction" works	1
2. Asteroid 2007 TU24 has NASA concerned.....	2
3. The Top Secret US Military Space Program. Is The Future Already Here?	2
4. Dogon Alien "Mystery" Demystified.....	4
5. Strange Object In Space! And It's Not The ISS!.....	5
6. Dozens in Texas town report seeing UFO	5
7. Pseudoskeptics and Disinformants on ATS	6
8. Mars Blue Sky & Water!.....	7
9. Startup Says It Can Make Ethanol for $1 a Gallon, and Without Corn.....	7
10. The Dennis Kucinich (and wife Elizabeth) ATS MIX Interview NOW UP - ATS MIX Show SE04.....	7
11. Voter Fraud ?????.....	7
12. VIDEO: This is What A Police State Looks Like.....	7
13. Police officer records UFO	7
14. Phobos May Be Alien Space Base: White House adviser!!.....	8
15. Where is Ron Paul?.....	8
16. Pine Gap Underground Entry?.....	8
17. Alien Hair from Australia.....	9
18. Evidence of Election Fraud in Iowa and NH?.....	9
19. Bizarre statement from Fox Debate Moderator.....	9
20. A question about the "reptilian thread" phenomenon.....	9
21. World Markets Plunge - DJIA Futures Down Nearly 500 Points	10
22. BREAKING NEWS: Military Offers Explanation For Stephenville UFO Reports.....	10
23. OUTBREAK: 2000+ Have Fever In Bird Flu Hot Spot.....	11
24. U.S. Supreme Court Denies Certiorari.....	11
25. Reporting From Texas.....	11
26. I am Jesse Macbeth, this my response to the world.....	11
27. Electric star model now explains every problem facing solar space physics	12
28. 3 Overlooked Causes for World War III.....	13
29. Life on Mars? Amazing photos from NASA probe reveal image of mystery figure on Red Planet.....	15
30. How 'Mystery Space Orbiters' (F.A.S.T.) were filmed.....	15
31. Alex Jone's Endgame: Blueprint for Global Enslavement.....	16
32. Ufo Fryazino (UFO over Fryazino" Stihiya, NTV channel).....	16
33. The Truth About Christopher Columbus.....	16
34. Thinking for Yourself is Now a Crime--must read for ATS'ers	20
35. Scientists have breakthrough treatment: Reverses Alzheimer's in minutes.....	20
36. A Bigger Picture (Rise of the NWO).....	20
37. Mystery Signal from Outer Space Heard by Arecibo.....	20

38. This Divided State: Michael Moore at Utah Valley State College	20
39. The Smoking (Anti-Aircraft) Guns (of Los Angeles, 1942).....	21
40. UFOs in Parliament.....	22
41. Dozens in Texas town report seeing UFO	23
42. Energizer "D" Battery Exposed.....	23
43. The Holocaust is Overrated.....	23
44. Defunct Spy Satellite Falling From Orbit.....	24
45. Sighting over Mexico Januray 26th,2008 VERY REAL!!!!.....	24
46. Scientists Confirm Significant Global Cooling Coming.....	24
47. Israeli Mid-Air UFO explosion.....	25
48. Barack Obama will be The Anti Christ.....	25
49. U.S. military reports "significant confrontation" between 5 Iranian vessels.....	26
50. Paypal Freezes New Hampshire Recount Funds.....	26
51. Petition for new Consciousness Forum.....	27
52. New inflation data explain middle-class squeeze.....	27
53. I have a signal.....	27
54. Study: Bush, Other Officials Issued Hundreds of False Statements Before Iraq Invasion.....	27
55. Strange objects hanging in night sky over Iraq.....	27
56. Satellite image manipulating example.....	28
57. My confession: I was taken to the Kuiper belt!.....	28
58. Corrupt U.S. Officials Sold Nuclear Weapons Secrets Update: NEW Edmonds interview of 1/30.....	29
59. Anyone else noticed increased police presence in their cities?.....	29
60. UFOs Across The Timeline! Evidence Of Alien Presence?.....	29
61. A letter from a Norwegian politician (2012).....	30
62. Cancer Cause and Cure - Could it be this Simple?.....	30
63. Footage of E.T.'s at Area51?.....	30
64. Today we remember them all.....	31
65. Brattleboro to vote on arresting Bush, Cheney	31
66. My New Years Challenge! Help me!.....	31
67. Church of Scientology being attacked.....	32
68. "Strange Lights over San Diego" Video [1/1/08].....	32
69. Soviets Found Something	32
70. "Staged Invasion to occur around August 2008", says Montuak Survivor.....	33
71. Indigo Boy From Mars!! A Must Read!.....	33
72. Breaking News! The re-count is on!.....	34
73. Stephenville, Texas UFO Witness Ricky Sorrells Audio Interview (MUST LISTEN!).....	34

How "the law of attraction" works

Created by: Skyfloating on January 12, flags: 156, replies: 1108

I see quite a few threads on the recently popularized "law of attraction", "manifesting your wishes" and the movie "the secret" pop up on ATS.

I rarely respond to them since I am, professionally involved with the subject matter since many years and tend to get bored by "discussing the basics".

I have authored a number of books on the subject. I will not disclose those books here because I prefer to use ATS anonymously and not as an author of "law of attraction" subjects (except for this thread).

Being a author about and teacher of the subject since more than a decade, I do welcome questions about it in this thread though. My answers will not be "channelled from a higher source", but simply straight talk from an expert on the matter.

Popular Misunderstandings of the "law of attraction"

In my opinion, there is a whole lot more to know about the subject than popular movies such as "The Secret" and "What the Bleep do we know" can show without falling away from the mainstream or becoming too lengthy. Here are some of the misconceptions that spontaneously come to mind:

"You can have everything you want"

This is such a simplified, mass-marketing-like statement that it can be said to be untrue. You cannot "have everything you want" since the mere act of wanting implies a seperation from that which is wanted. Make sense? There are billions of people wanting stuff all their lives without getting it. Id put "the law of attraction" this way: You can have everything you believe you already have". I'll explain this in later posts.

"This is a brand new thing" and "This is a new new age thing"

Nope. Its not new at all. It used to be underground or "occult science" or "secret science". Take for example the 1930s book called "Thoughtforms" by Leadbeater/Besant (Theosophists) which teaches that thoughts can densify and become physical matter. But its even older than that. As far back as the 3rd Century kabbalists were talking about "visualizing things in order to create them" (see for example interpretations of the ancient book sefer yeritzah)

"All you have to do is visualize something for it to come true"

This is another simplification which, many will experience themselves, is not entirely correct. First of all, in the metaphysical-sciences, the purpose of visualisation is not to "make something happen", but to experience something as "already happening" and to get into a certain state-of-being, a certain frequency...which then attracts certain beneficial events. What most people do, however, is use visualisation of dreams out of a state of LACK of those dreams, in other words, in order to "make them happen some day". This is contradictory to the law of attraction though. Proper visualisation is not used to "make something happen later", but to FEEL the reality of something right now, to familiarize oneself with the overall vibe of a certain reality. Also, most only visualize a two-dimensional image in front of their forehead. This is much less effective than making the visualisation a three-dimensional, tactile, all-senses, whole-body ecstatic experience. It is not the visualisation that creates anything, but the energy/emotion/excitement which acts as a magnetic signal.

"Without action, none of this works"

This I have frequently read on forums and heard from people. However, "action" is not what the law of attraction is primarily about. If it were about taking action towards your goals, then this type of magical technique would not be magical at all but no different than the normal way of achieving something. Action is alright and action works because we have been conditioned to believe that action-towards-our-desires works, but the law-of-attraction does not necessarily require action (and if it does then only inspired action upon opportunities that present themselves after one has put creation-energy into motion). The law-of-attraction states that you get what you put out, that what you experience is a match to your overall energy-vibration. Therefore, everything you like and everything you dislike creates your overall energy-output (much of the two neutralizing each other before anything is created) and will reflect in your life experience.

"You have to think positive all the time"

The denial of ones and the worlds shadow sides has nothing to do with the real metaphysics of this and much more to do with immature and cheap variations of the law of attraction. A balanced being acknowledges negative and positive. The negative is used to learn what one truly feels/believes. Negative feelings for example, are an indicator of having strayed off one's inner path, the path one's soul has chosen. Without these negative feelings you would be without any sort of navigation in life, without any sort of free will to choose what is right and wrong for you. Suppressing negative feelings equals suppressing the very path to the positive side of the pendulum. What you resist will persist. The expert therefore allows and utilizes the negative while shifting to the positive (sometimes using the neutral zero-point as a stepping stone to the positive).

Of course there is much more to say on the subject. But I've hesitated up to now because the discussion around it mostly does not involve the deeper aspects of it. I for example do not think I have to resort to "quantum physics" in order to make my metaphysics look more scholarly or accepted. This is a tactic of new age marketers. I also don't like all the sensationalist trash built around it. That's the stuff that will attract all kinds of so called "skeptics" who will rightly point out all the nonsense. I will therefore make no claims whatsoever of science, or evidence, or proof or whatever skeptics demand. The proof for the effectivity of the law of attraction lies not in measurable laboratory experiment but in first-hand-experience (which is gained by a certain amount of practice). More to come. Questions, Comments, positive and negative, welcome.

Link to thread: ...thread326476/pg1

Asteroid 2007 TU24 has NASA concerned.

Created by: mungodave on January 20, flags: 124, replies: 2146

UPDATE: January 28th:

Members have noticed a marked change in the earth's magnetosphere (links removed, visit the thread for external references), as this asteroid approaches.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Admin Update: the account below was originally posted on the Yahoo News Message boards, but has since been removed by Yahoo management. I've recovered the posting from Google Cache to include below

"Asteroid 2007 TU24 has NASA concerned. A former colleague of mine is now a contract worker for NASA who develops and maintains the software applications for the Solar System Dynamic simulator and other NASA applications. He called me last night to inform me that NASA has their full focus and attention on this asteroid. All software applications support staff have been directed to devote their time specifically to running solutions on this Near Earth Object. They are running solutions with different inputs and the results are so close to direct impact that NASA has decided not to update the online simulator with these results. When you look at the current solution online the last orbit determination parameter is from January 1, 2008. This data is 11 days old.

11 day old data for an object that has been getting closer and closer to us in each successive run is not normal protocol. Normal procedure would have the solutions posted online every two to three days at the beginning of the 30 day window which was December 29, 2007. As the window of time shrinks the data is refreshed with more frequency. The lack of refreshing the data online is suspicious and should raise some eyebrows amongst those who have intimate knowledge of how the astral community operates.

My friend, who I cannot identify, because of security issues told me that NASA is about 50/50 as to whether this asteroid will impact Earth. The dynamic variable that is in play is whether or not Earth's gravity will pull the asteroid in. The trajectory angle that the asteroid is approaching from is the southern hemisphere. The solutions currently show numerous scenarios impacting Earth. The solutions that favor a Southern hemisphere impact are the most serious. These solutions are a direct straight on impact. The Northern hemisphere solutions vary widely from because there is the likelihood that the asteroid will fragment as it traverses Earth's atmosphere. There is no possible way of knowing with 100% certainty how much this object will fragment if the Northern hemisphere solution pans out. The solutions that have this NEO missing Earth have it passing perilously close to satellites in orbit and the International Space Station.

This is a very fluid situation that literally changes by the minute. NASA is keeping a tight lip on the situation as they do not know with certainty what will transpire. The game plan in these situations is to avoid civil unrest and end of day's paranoia. This is to ensure that the privileged class can make it easily to their safe havens, which are underground bunkers.

If you are praying man or woman I suggest to you that your prayers are directed toward the protection of Earth from this object. If you are not a praying person I suggest to you that you become one. May the Great Spirit protect us all!"(visit the link for the full news article)

[edit on 28-1-2008 by SkepticOverlord]

Link to thread: ...thread328087/pg1

The Top Secret US Military Space Program. Is The Future Already Here?

Created by: mikesingh on January 28, flags: 82, replies: 297

"And apparently, NASA must be used to convince the public that our current technology, such as with our very old and decrepit Space Shuttle program, is the best we have, while our military conducts space missions with technology that we can only fantasize about while watching Star Trek." - USAF Medic, 1980s
(visit the thread to view linked images)

An artist's impression of X-20 Dyna-Soar being launched on top of Titan booster allegedly operated only from 1957 to 1963.

But is that where the American military's secret space program began, continuing to this day?

Courtesy: Earthfiles

At the outset, I would like to thank Linda Moulton Howe who has allowed me to reproduce portions of her article Secret American Military Space Program? first published in Earthfiles.

I have brought out certain crux issues that would help one to see what is really going on around us. The bottom line is, if this is what it is made out to be, then it is a conspiracy of huge proportions. And probably the US is not alone in this. Are top secret space programs being run by Russia too?

Linda had interviewed Richard Sauder, Ph.D. author of three books: Underground Bases & Tunnels: What Is the Government Trying to Hide? © 1995; Kundalini Tales © 1998; and Underwater and Underground Bases © 2001 in late 2007. I am reproducing some portions that point to the possibility of an ongoing top secret military space program that has been kept under wraps for decades!

If that's true, then what about those secret space stations that John Lear, Zorgon and others have said are up and running since the 60s? What about Dr Richard Boylan who has given a detailed account of the secret air/space craft that are routinely being flown by top secret projects?

Considering the available evidence from multiple sources, what is the degree of truth in these reports? If it is true then all I can say is that this could be one of the biggest on-going conspiracies.

According to Linda, on November 20th, 2007, she interviewed Armstrong Aerospace draftsman, Michael Schrott, about his research into the question: Have black budget trillions supported a secret American space program that parallels the public NASA? Since then, she has received several supportive emails, including Richard Sauder.

Linda says that she talked face-to-face earlier this year with a career federal alphabet soup physicist who worked for Project Blue Book back in the 1960s. He's not one of the publicly known Project Blue Book scientists, but he did work out of Wright-Patterson at the time. He told her that back in the 1960s already, the U. S. Air Force had two UFOs, what he called 'UFOs' – that they would fly right out of Wright-Patterson AFB. He said they would open the hangar doors in the middle of the night and fly them right out of the hangars at full bore speed.

Linda mentions that Richard Sauder told her that over the years, he got many indications from a variety of sources that...

"the U. S. military has its own UFOs and this is just another data point from her pointing in the direction of a decades-long military program of deep deceit and thorough lies about the true involvement of U. S. military agencies in secret UFO and space technology and projects. It's highly likely that there are multiple, secret, classified, tightly compartmentalized UFO and space programs – not just a single space program but programS, plural, and that the U. S. military and NASA have been lying through their teeth to the American people about all of this since at least the World War II era, if not before."

Extracts from the interview:

LMH : So, you would support a bottom line that there has been a very public NASA space program, which is always in various budget disputes and problems, but behind it there is another space program that is quite real and more advanced than what we are seeing publicly?

RS : Oh, sure! I assign a very high probability to that likelihood that there is a secret parallel American space program, or programs, plural, using non-conventional aerospace technologies. I'm speaking of things such as electrogravitics and anti-gravity along the lines of what Thomas Townsend Brown and John Searle did back in the 20th Century in their research going back to the 1930s and coming up to the 1960s. Bottom line for me is that my research has shown and the research of others that there is a great deal more to the space program than NASA and the United States military have told the American people and the world. And in all likelihood, manned exploration started much earlier, has discovered much more and has more ancient roots by far than we have been told.

LMH : There have been other leaks from physicists who have said that we have already been to mars in a secret space program.

RS : I don't disbelieve that. I think it's entirely possible. In fact, there is good evidence that there was a follow-on secret space shuttle program run by the United States Air Force. In August 1989, The New York Times reported that the United States Air Force was disbanding a previously unknown secret cadre of 32 secret military astronauts based in Los Angeles, who were associated with a parallel multi-billion dollar space shuttle program that the USAF is running out of Vandenberg AFB in California.

This story by veteran New York Times reporter, William Broad, reported that the USAF was abandoning a major space control center in Colorado and a $3.3 billion never-used spaceport at Vandenberg AFB, according to the Air Force.

Essentially, the thrust of the story was that the USAF spent billions of dollars on a secret 32-man astronaut corps and a secret spaceport and launch control center (LCC) and never used any of it! I simply do not believe this account as put forth by the USAF. I believe, in fact, that the opposite is likely to be true and that the U. S. military does have, and has had, not one but likely multiple secret space programs using both conventional aerospace technologies and also unconventional technologies such as electro-gravitic and nuclear propulsion modes.

I believe it is highly possible that the USAF has put up its own space shuttles, perhaps using Dyno-Soar style technology, and very likely using the facilities at Vandenberg AFB that they told us back in the late 1980s that they lavished billions of dollars on and never used. Linda, I think that's a stretch. They probably did use them.

End of interview.

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Artist's impression of the X-20.

Courtesy: Wikipedia

"By the end of 1962, Dyna-Soar had been given the designation X-20, the acceleration rocket (to be used in the Dyna Soar I drop-tests) and had been successfully fired. The USAF held an 'unveiling' ceremony for the X-20 in Las Vegas and yet mysteriously, the cancellation of the Dyna-Soar project was announced a year later in December 1963 right after spacecraft construction had begun and $660 million had been spent, according to public records.

But is that where the cover-up of the secret military American space program began and the diversion of trillions of dollars over the next years to finance its operations? "

Continued in next post.....

Link to thread: ...thread329997/pg1

Dogon Alien "Mystery" Demystified

Created by: IsaacKoi on January 11, flags: 78, replies: 81

(I submitted the article below for distribution via the ATS newsletter email, in response to a previous article about the Dogon "mystery" distributed via that newsletter in October 2007 to approximately 60,000 email addresses. My article was not accepted – so I'll simply post it here for anyone interested. I hope that at least some of the substantial number of people that read the original article will read at least some parts of this one as well. You can help make this thread reach more of those email recipients by "flagging" this thread - by clicking on the red "Flag Thread" button in the box on the screen slightly up and to the left from this post.)

Synopsis

On 12 October 2007, the ATS newsletter contained a provocative article by NGC2736 entitled (links removed, visit the thread for external references). That article related to astronomical knowledge (particularly relating to the (links removed, visit the thread for external references)) attributed to the (links removed, visit the thread for external references) of (links removed, visit the thread for external references) in Western Africa.

By the time the Dogon people were questioned by two French anthropologists Marcel Griaule and Germaine Dieterlen, between 1931 and 1950, the Dogon supposedly had knowledge of various astronomical matters (particularly relating to the Sirius solar system) that could not have been discovered using the technology available to them.

Various researchers have stated, or implied, that the relative knowledge derived from alien visitors to the Earth.

The (links removed, visit the thread for external references) claimed that "The things told [by the Dogon] to these two outsiders back in the 1930s were astounding, especially for that day and age, and from that remote a people. Their oral history told of the correct motion of the near planets, and of the moons of Jupiter. They spoke of the rings of Saturn, and of the star Sirius. How could they know that it had an invisible companion, a fact scarcely known to most Europeans even then? How could they know its true orbital length of 50 years? And how could they have all this in their thousands year old oral history?"

NGC2736's article is a concise and well-written account of one side of the debate regarding the Dogon. But it only presented one side.

This article seeks to present some of the alternative answers to the question raised by NGC2736, i.e. "How Could They Know That?".

Numerous sceptics, notably popular astronomer Carl Sagan, have suggested that the knowledge attributed to the Dogon may have been obtained from Europeans prior to questioning by Griaule and Dieterlen[url].

This article is split into the following sections:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

I shall discuss the claim by the leading proponent of the "The Sirius Mystery" that the alleged "discovery" in 1995 of a third star in the Sirius solar system has "rendered most criticism obsolete", and give several compelling reasons for considering that claim to be severely flawed. (See "Section 5 : What about Sirius C?").

[edit on 11-1-2008 by Crakeur]

[edit on 11-1-2008 by IsaacKoi]

Link to thread: ...thread326227/pg1

Top 100 UFO Cases - Revealed!

Created by: IsaacKoi on January 21, flags: 78, replies: 59

Hot on the heels of my article demystifying the Dogon "mystery", here is another ATS newsletter reject that I'd like to share:

As always, if you want more articles like this one, flag this article by clicking on the flag thread button - slightly up and to the left of this post.

"Top 100 UFO Cases - Revealed!"

By Isaac Koi.

Copyright 2008.

Synopsis

Details of masses of UFO cases can be found on the Internet.

Which are best cases amongst that mass of material?

In this article I unveil (for the first time on a public forum) the "Top 100" UFO cases based on the frequency of their discussion within 963 UFO/SETI books.

If ufologists wrote books solely with the objective of presenting the best available evidence, then the most frequently discussed cases would be the ones that the most authors regarded as the best cases.

Does the resulting list accord with your view as to the best cases? If not, which cases would you add or remove? Why?

This article is in 3 sections:

Kind Regards,

Isaac Koi

Link to thread: ...thread328327/pg1

Strange Object In Space! And It's Not The ISS!

Created by: mikesingh on January 4, flags: 77, replies: 134

This looks familiar! It resembles those so called F.A.S.T objects that were discussed on ATS earlier.

This photograph was taken by a friend, Michael, in Texas who's given me the go-ahead to post his pics. So here goes:

According to him,

"The red one was just a stationary red dot I noted as the ISS passed overhead. It never changed relationship to the stars as sunrise occurred.

I had stationed myself on a hilltop to be in the right location and time according to NASA. With the equipment I have, it was working at the extreme end. The photos far exceed what a 200mm f/l lens can do. The Nikon D-200 is a great camera.

It was the first day of "day light saving time", and I had not changed the camera clock yet.

If it was someone else's photo, I would have suspected it was a craft with red strobe lights descending and crossing the field of view. I have seen the effect with long exposures at night. Yet there is too much detail I can not explain away as well as knowing there was no apparent movement to the naked eye."

This is probably the ISS and Shuttle, as according to him it was at the right location and time. But he's not 100% sure of that either!

(visit the thread to view linked images)

ISS and Shuttle?

Taken with a tripod (no tracking device), Nikon D-200 with a 135mm zoom lens. Effective digital fl-200mm.

Camera time had not been adjusted for daylight saving time yet.

Now this is the pic that's NOT the ISS. He noticed it as the ISS passed overhead. It was just a stationary red dot. He thought it was Mars, but when he enlarged it, this is what was revealed!

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Photograph of the UFO using a 200mm lens and Nikon D200 camera.

Enlarged..

(visit the thread to view linked images)

I shot off a U2U to Internos for an opinion, and he felt it was pretty intriguing too!

So what was this object that he photographed? To me it looks more like an extraterrestrial biological entity than a UFO!

Unfortunately Michael's on a trip to Zapata Falls and so won't be in contact for some time. But this time he's taking a more powerful telephoto lens and a back-up video capability. Let's hope he gets some more exciting stuff!!

Cheers! :D

Link to thread: ...thread324754/pg1

Dozens in Texas town report seeing UFO

Created by: Symp EL on January 14, flags: 66, replies: 656

STEPHENVILLE, Texas - In this farming community where nightfall usually brings clear, starry skies, residents are abuzz over reported sightings of what many believe is a UFO.

Several dozen people — including a pilot, county constable and business owners — insist they have seen a large silent object with bright lights flying low and fast. Some reported seeing fighter jets chasing it.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Link to thread: ...thread326891/pg1

Pseudoskeptics and Disinformants on ATS

Created by: Skyfloating on January 19, flags: 61, replies: 380

In 4 years of reading ATS I have become convinced that a troop of paid-disinformants is operating on ATS to stifle research, derail threads, make the good work of ATS members look stupid to the reader who only superficially browses a subject. These disinformants are often cloaked as skeptics but do not behave like real skeptics but rather like pseudoskeptics.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"The term pseudoskepticism (or pseudo-skepticism) denotes thinking that appears to be skeptical but is not. The term is most commonly encountered in the form popularised by Marcello Truzzi, through his Journal of Scientific Exploration, where he defined pseudoskeptics as those who take "the negative rather than an agnostic position but still call themselves 'skeptics'"[1] [2]."

Sound familiar?

For all those Mars, UFO, 9/11, Paranormal, Ancient Civilizations researchers out there who have become disheartened by the onslaught of attacks of the pseudoskeptic and given up on their research, its high time to re-instate some confidence in researching views that deviate from the mainstream.

"While a Professor of Sociology at Eastern Michigan University in 1987, Truzzi gave the following description of pseudoskeptics:While a Professor of Sociology at Eastern Michigan University in 1987, Truzzi gave the following description of pseudoskeptics:

In science, the burden of proof falls upon the claimant; and the more extraordinary a claim, the heavier is the burden of proof demanded. The true skeptic takes an agnostic position, one that says the claim is not proved rather than disproved. He asserts that the claimant has not borne the burden of proof and that science must continue to build its cognitive map of reality without incorporating the extraordinary claim as a new "fact." Since the true skeptic does not assert a claim, he has no burden to prove anything. He just goes on using the established theories of "conventional science" as usual. But if a critic asserts that there is evidence for disproof, that he has a negative hypothesis --saying, for instance, that a seeming psi result was actually due to an artifact--he is making a claim and therefore also has to bear a burden of proof.[3]

"

So much for the hysterical "show me evidence right now or its all untrue!" crowd.

This is particularly interesting:

"Truzzi attributed the following characteristics to pseudoskeptics:

Truzzi attributed the following characteristics to pseudoskeptics:

The tendency to deny, rather than doubt [4]

Double standards in the application of criticism [5]

The making of judgments without full inquiry [6]

Tendency to discredit, rather than investigate [7]

Use of ridicule or ad hominem attacks in lieu of arguments[8]

Pejorative labeling of proponents as 'promoters', 'pseudoscientists' or practitioners of 'pathological science.'[9]

Presenting insufficient evidence or proof [10]

Assuming criticism requires no burden of proof [11]

Making unsubstantiated counter-claims [12]

Counter-claims based on plausibility rather than empirical evidence [13]

Suggesting that unconvincing evidence is grounds for dismissing it [14]

What is this thread for?

* It provides a thread you can link to the next time a pseudoskeptic tries to derail your thread or confuse readers not familiar with the depth of a topic.

* It invites discussion about the methods and tactics of the pseudoskeptic.

* It invites discussion about the reality of paid disinfo-agents on this board (some of which I will contribute to).

Remember, the true skeptic is a welcome asset to real research. He says: "Maybe its true, but probably not".

The pseudoskeptic contributes nothing to research. Before examining or discussing he shoots out: "This is bunk. Nothing to see here!" For some pseudoskeptics this has become daily routine on ATS. Zero contribution, much destruction.

The discovery of new things can only come about with the childlike (not childish) vigor that enthusiasm and "dreaming big dreams" produce. Ive seen the passion of many able ATS-researchers destroyed by a particular brand of scoffing, ridicule and attack. Go through the archives and look how many once great contributors to the site no longer come here.

Beware of the inflationary use of the words "show evidence!". Beware of the manipulative phrasing some of them use. Beware of the twisting of words and the taking-out-of-context of quotes. There are many propaganda-warlike methods the Disinfo-Agent and the Pseudoskeptic use.

Progress the cause of publishing alternative views and non-mainstream information.

:up:

[edit on 19-1-2008 by Skyfloating]

[edit on 19-1-2008 by Skyfloating]

Link to thread: ...thread327954/pg1

Mars Blue Sky & Water!

Created by: Lotlatino on January 4, flags: 60, replies: 434 hey guys i might be way off but..... nasa has always told us that mars sky is red right? well someone in nasa is going to get in trouble!!! LOL at the official Nasa.gov site theirs a primary picture at the home page of Spirit taking a picture of mars landscape but..... the sky is Blue Rolf, someone must have forgotten that the sky needs to be painted red before uploading the picture or what?? and you can clearly see what looks like WATER!! amazing!

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Link to thread: ...thread324816/pg1

Startup Says It Can Make Ethanol for $1 a Gallon, and Without Corn

Created by: Jazzyguy on January 26, flags: 57, replies: 45
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)
"A biofuel startup in Illinois can make ethanol from just about anything organic for less than $1 per gallon, and it wouldn't interfere with food supplies, company officials said.

Coskata, which is backed by General Motors and other investors, uses bacteria to convert almost any organic material, from corn husks (but not the corn itself) to municipal trash, into ethanol.

"It's not five years away, it's not 10 years away. It's affordable, and it's now," said Wes Bolsen, the company's VP."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread329553/pg1

The Dennis Kucinich (and wife Elizabeth) ATS MIX Interview NOW UP - ATS MIX Show SE04

Created by: Dave Rabbit on January 16, flags: 56, replies: 83

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Dennis Kucinich and wife Elizabeth are being kind enough to do an interview with Dave Rabbit & Johnny Anonymous on the ATS MIX Show this Friday, January 18th, 2008 at 10 a.m. est. They are both taking time out of their VERY busy schedule to speak with Dave & Johnny, which includes Dennis's campaign efforts for a Democratic Presidential bid this election year. Currently, Mr. Kucinich is the House Representative for the 10th District of Ohio, and before this he served as Mayor of Cleveland. Although she is not running for President, Elizabeth in her own right has made great accomplishments throughout her years of campaigning for social justices. Among other things, she has spent many months in rural India and Tanzania advocating regional development, and volunteered with a unit of the British Red Cross. Together, they are campaigning for a better America with ideas to improve Health Care, foreign policy and our economy, just to name a few. The interview will be posted Monday, January 21, 2008 here on the ATS MIX Show Page as well as our worldwide feeds.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Link to thread: ...thread327354/pg1

Voter Fraud ????

Created by: Nailer on January 9, flags: 53, replies: 96

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Is this true ? I believe it is very true."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread325730/pg1

VIDEO: This is What A Police State Looks Like

Created by: palehorse23 on January 14, flags: 53, replies: 201

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"In Portland, the cops get up close and personal for the crime of exercising the First Amendment.

"(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread326898/pg1

Police officer records UFO

Created by: oLDWoRLDDiSoRDeR on January 26, flags: 53, replies: 142

"I have always held a high regard for Officer Friendly in the matters of UFOs, this is no exception.

In The State of Veracruz Mexico, a UFO is clearly seen in an official police patrol cam video.

"

(isit the thread to view linked videos)

[edit on 26-1-2008 by oLDWoRLDDiSoRDeR]

Link to thread: ...thread329641/pg1

Phobos May Be Alien Space Base: White House adviser!!

Created by: mikesingh on January 17, flags: 47, replies: 130

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Phobos, photographed by the Mars Express High Resolution

Stereo Camera (HRSC).

Courtesy: The Register

Was Phobos some kind of an 'outpost' of Mars made by an ET civilization, maybe hundreds of thousands of years ago? Or is it still so?

What with all the weird, unexplained anomalies on Mars and Phobos, there could be some element of credibility to this, though it's pure conjecture so far.

Whilst browsing Rense, this is what I found. Though this is of the 60s vintage, it shows the thinking in the White House in the days of yore. But it could be the thinking today too! Who knows?

"The Martian moon Phobos, generally accepted as a celestial body, actually may be an artificial satellite launched long ago by an advanced Martian race, according to Dr. S. Fred Singer, special advisor to President Eisenhower on space developments. No mention was made of the other Mars moon, Deimos.

Dr. Singer backed a claim first made by the Soviet astrophysicist Shklovsky. The Russian scientist's announcement that Phobos was a hollow, artificial satellite, proving the existence of a Martian civilization, set off heated arguments among astronomers. Shklovsky based his decision on a long study of Phobos' peculiar orbit, which other astronomers have noted. The Russian claim has calculations and those of earlier astronomers prove Phobos cannot possibly be an ordinary moon.

In 1963, Raymond H. Wilson Jr., Chief of Applied Mathematics at NASA, joined Shklovsky and Dr. Singer in their Martian conclusions. He stated that "Phobos might be a colossal base orbiting Mars."

Now have a look at some of these images of Phobos. What do you think?

(visit the thread to view linked images)

A monolith on Phobos. Is it artificial?

Courtesy: Palermo Project

Aliensurgeon

Here's a weird formation on Phobos taken by Mars Global Surveyor. Do you notice it toward the upper left?

(visit the thread to view linked images)

MOC image 50103 subframe near Stickney crater.

Courtesy: MSSS

I have zoomed in sharpened and reduced picture noise some...

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Weird formation on Phobos.. Can this be the remains of an artificial structure?

And now the Canadian Space Agency is set to lead a mission to Phobos named Phobos Reconnaissance and International Mars Exploration ("PRIME"). The PRIME science team has tentatively selected the monolith area as the target landing site! (Well, I wish NASA takes a leaf out of this and selects target landing sites near some of those numerous anomalies on Mars!)

Why Phobos?

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Phobos – An alien docking station? This infrared photograph was the last taken by the Russian probe, Phobos II before it lost contact (Destroyed?)

Courtesy: ufos-aliens

Does anyone have any more info on the anomalies on Phobos? It does seem to be a strange moon. Could it actually be an alien space base?

Cheers! :D

Ref:

Link to thread: ...thread327511/pg1

Where is Ron Paul?

Created by: TrueAmerican on January 16, flags: 46, replies: 155

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Link shows latest New York Times results, except for one slight little problem..."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread327331/pg1

Pine Gap Underground Entry?

Created by: mungodave on January 18, flags: 46, replies: 527

Ive been tooling around on Google Earth, following dead end roads around Pine Gap, Central Australia and found an interesting entry straight into the side of a mountain range under the main facility.... appears to have been "touched up" some.

It appears to be the main heavy vehicle entry located close to the maingaurd facility

Any comments?

Cheers from Down Under

Mungo

Find it at.....

23'48"47.70S 133'44"16.86E

[Mod Edit: Title correction - Jak]

[edit on 3/2/08 by JAK]

Link to thread: ...thread327853/pg1

Alien Hair from Australia

Created by: DogHead on January 31, flags: 45, replies: 91
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

The Khoury encounters were extremely well researched, and the bizarre hair was confirmed to be hominid / human albeit of an unique type--

Word is that now the William and Eliza Hall Institute in Melbourne Australia is working on cloning from the hair sample. To what end, no one seems to know.

Link to thread: <...thread331025/pg1>

Evidence of Election Fraud in Iowa and NH?

Created by: TrueAmerican on January 9, flags: 44, replies: 179

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Michael Rivero of "WhatReallyHappened.com" posted a link to an article on his site today. Below it, he wrote: "I received numerous emails from lowans who had participated in the Caucus, and they were reporting Ron Paul wins in the rooms they voted in."

I shot off an email to Mike Rivero, asking him if he wouldn't post more info about those emails here in this thread btw.

Caller to C-SPAN concerning Sutton County NH Ron Paul votes."(visit the link for the full news article)

Related News Links:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

[edit on 9-1-2008 by TrueAmerican]

Link to thread: <...thread325731/pg1>

Bizarre statement from Fox Debate Moderator

Created by: Golack on January 13, flags: 44, replies: 108

I don't know if any of you guys have been following Ron Paul or not but that is not really the point of this thread.

I want to discuss something very odd that I discovered within a clip of the recent South Carolina Republican Presidential debate.

Carl Cameron, a Fox Newscaster and moderator at this debate, was asking Ron Paul a question. The question was whether he had any viability as a Republican candidate.

The exact words, "Congressman Paul, yet another question about electability. Do you have any sir?" etc etc

But he utters something very odd in between the statement about electability and the question "Do you have any sir?" It happens between the 8 and 10 second mark in the video.

(isit the thread to view linked videos)

See it? "Their way"

What the heck is that supposed to mean :lol:

Link to thread: <...thread326693/pg1>

A question about the "reptilian thread" phenomenon

Created by: Djarums on January 2, flags: 43, replies: 213

Please note this is posted by Djarums, ATS Member, NOT Djarums ATS SuperModerator. I'm posting my personal views and a question from ME.

As a longtime member of ATS and someone who has always been interested in alternative topics and discussions I have seen dozens of threads posted claiming to show video of "so and so" morphing into a reptilian etc.

Now, for full disclosure, while I do enjoy discussing alternative topics I have always found this topic to be a little bit "out there". That said, I've always respected other people's opinions. My opinion is that these claims are a bit outrageous. But hey, that's just me.

My question about these threads is actually a really simple one. Please bear with me for a moment and consider the following points.

You'll notice that these threads are always about famous people. Whether it's a prominent politicians, a news reporter, a celebrity, or whoever, it's always someone who would be considered "famous" or "influential" which I'm sure feeds the theory that there is something sinister about them. We never really see videos titled "random person in the street turns into lizard" or anything like that. It's always someone well known, which brings me to my next point.

Anyone who is familiar with today's popular culture, especially in the United States and England, is quite familiar with the fact that most celebrities are having photographs and videos taken of them nearly 24/7, which brings me to my next point.

All of the video of these people is archived these days. Every newscast, every soundbite, every blurb having anything to do with these "newsmakers" is archived by various sources. This brings me to my actual question...

Why is it that every single time someone presents a thread about "so and so" being a reptilian is the evidence some third rate, horrible quality, knock off, faded out, pixellated, blurry, boxy, horrendous YouTube Video?

Do you mean to tell me that no better quality is available? Baloney! If I was watching CNN (for example) and I noticed Anderson Cooper's nose change shape you can be pretty darn sure that I'd hit the DVR up real quickly, or better yet, order a copy of the program from the network. YES, did you know that you can almost always request a copy of a television program from the network? Did you know that the networks keep ALL of their programs on tape? Yes, every one of them. Now, you may reply to me by saying "well, they charge 20 dollars for it", but come on now... if I had seen something that would change everyone's perception of reality I'd surely pay the 20 dollars for it. Wouldn't you?

But no... instead all we get is the youtube garbage quality that I described earlier with too many adjectives to repeat. So what happens with the youtube videos? What's wrong with the youtube videos? Well, what happens is that because they are of such pathetic quality, the immediate arguments presented are related to that very video's quality. Digital noise, garbling, warped pixels, etc. It is impossible to refute those arguments because they're RIGHT!!! The videos suck! Show me the Queen of England or The President "shapeshifting" in full screen 1080p quality and then we'll have something to talk about. Video hosting? Hell, if you find someone morphing into a lizard on REAL quality video, the offers to host it will come from everywhere. I'll pay for the damn thing to be hosted.

In this day and age of video being everywhere and everything being saved I can NOT understand this bizarre phenomenon of people uploading their supposed evidence of something potentially earth shattering in horrendous quality. Why do this? If you're trying to PROVE something or to EXPOSE something or to REVEAL something, then put in the effort and do the job. By simply pasting artifact riddled videoclips that are worse than a 10 dollar cellular phone's camera you are contributing nothing to what you're claiming to be your cause. Unless that's not the motivation at all...

I'd appreciate any input people have on this, perhaps unusually long post for me, but something that had been bugging me for a while. Any comments will be appreciated, and again I certainly don't mean to insult or pick on anyone this is something that I personally want to ask.

Link to thread: ...thread324370/pg1

World Markets Plunge - DJIA Futures Down Nearly 500 Points

Created by: JacKatMtn on January 21, flags: 42, replies: 513

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"LONDON -- After the heavy losses nursed by Asian and European stock markets, U.S. stock futures are pointing to huge losses when markets re-open on Tuesday. Futures on the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped 476 points"(visit the link for the full news article)

Related News Links:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Related AboveTopSecret.com Discussion Threads:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Mod Edit: Title tweak

[edit on 1/21/2008 by Gools]

Link to thread: ...thread328306/pg1

BREAKING NEWS: Military Offers Explanation For Stephenville UFO Reports

Created by: Frank Warren on January 23, flags: 42, replies: 298

"

FORT WORTH, Texas -- Nearly two weeks after UFOs were reported over Stephenville, the U.S. military has offered an explanation as to the source of the mysterious lights.

Maj. Karl Lewis, a spokesman for the 301st Fighter Wing at the Naval Air Station Fort Worth Joint Reserve Base, said in a news release that an "error was made regarding the reported training activity of military aircraft" and that "10 F-16s from the 457th Fighter Squadron were performing training operations in the Brownwood Military Operating Area."

Lewis had previously said there were no F-16s or other aircraft from the base in the area the night many of the sightings were reported.(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"

Cheers, Frank

Link to thread: ...thread328841/pg1

OUTBREAK: 2000+ Have Fever In Bird Flu Hot Spot

Created by: AllSeeingI on January 23, flags: 42, replies: 92
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)
"Kolkata, India. January 22 About 2,324 cases of people suffering from fever have been reported from the Birbhum district — Ground Zero of the bird flu outbreak in the state — in the last five days. According to the status report, as many as 707 fever cases were reported from Birbhum district on January 18. A day later and another 304 people were added to the list. January 21, 707 more cases were added to the existing figures and today an additional 613 cases of fever were recorded.
Link to thread: ...thread328917/pg1

U.S. Supreme Court Denies Certiorari

Created by: Patriot36 on January 15, flags: 41, replies: 34
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)
"On January 4, 2008, the Judges of the Supreme Court of the United States, in conference, voted to deny the Petition for Writ of Certiorari in the landmark Right-to-Petition case We The People v. United States. On January 7 the Court issued its Order denying certiorari. Without comment, the Supreme Court decided not to hear We The People v. United States, a case which, if heard, would have required the Court to declare -- for the first time history -- whether the Government is obligated to respond to proper Petitions by ordinary, private individuals for Redress of Grievances — specifically Grievances alleging unconstitutional behavior by the Government, and whether the individual having so Petitioned, has the Right to act to peacefully hold the Government accountable if the Government refuses to respond.
Link to thread: ...thread327055/pg1

Reporting From Texas

Created by: Valhall on January 19, flags: 41, replies: 54
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)
"Texas is currently the hot spot of a trifecta of open cases. From missing persons to UFOs to possible fugitives on the run, Texas is the place to be.
"(visit the link for the full news article)
Link to thread: ...thread327948/pg1

I am Jesse Macbeth, this my response to the world

Created by: dryken1 on January 23, flags: 41, replies: 268
well, iam fresh out of prison, and i see the world is still discussion me mostly bashing me, for the things that i have said i deserve it. but i know alot of you have been wanting to know the truth have been wanting to know why i did and said the things i did. first off let me say i had no ideah it would get this big i had no ideah it would become internation and that was not my intention. i simply wanted to get back at the army for the way they treated me in basic training. basic is hard but for me it was even harder. i dont expect any of you to believe any of this because my credability is already shot but here is the truth. take it are leave it. iam muslim and have been most of my life. my family was muslim. i grew up in saudi arabia for the first seven years of my life. i joined the army an american muslim proud of my country and wanting to make a difference i knew that i could be an asset to operation in iraq because iam muslim i speak arabic, i can read it and write it, and i know the culture. i was also homeless at that point in my life. i joined the army a proud man. but it seemed the army wasent so proud to have me. the first week of basic everything went ok besides being smoked and drilled to exhaustion there were no out of orinary issues. intil during the second one of my drill dgt (ds martin) appraoched me in the training bay in front of all the other iet soldiers in my platoon took the quran off my bunk spit in it and threw it across the room yelling "muslims dont belong in my army" and madde me crawl in his words" like the muslim dog i was" to get my holy book. i was upset but again i wanted so bad to be part of something. all my life i was eigther in grouphomes homeless are in jail. i wanted to change that and this was my chance so i took the the racial slurs and religiose slurs know that it wouold all end in 7 more weeks. but it only got worse during the 3 week of basic in the few hrs that we get to sleep i was pulled down from my bunk by my drill sgt. i was on the top bunk so the fall took the wind from me. he a and a couple of other iet soldiers beat me badly strip my cloths from me and tied me to the poll naked in the training bay. for the next 2 days i was tied there naked. pages of my quran were ripped out and shoved down my throat. bacon was shoved down my thrat. cold water was dumped on me. i was called hajji, sand nigger, and several other slurs. i was repeatedly punched kicked and spit on while i was tied i did not sleep for the days i was tied to the poll and i had to urniated on myself. i had open wounds and cuts on my face and all over mybody the only nourishment i got were the words of allah. that was enough to get me through it. on the mourning of the third day i was released told to shower and clean the bay. i still didnt know why they singled me out. i was on there side a black muslim american. trying to help and make a difference. but to them i was just a muslim i was just the enemy. i was hurt and scared and i began to hate them for the things they did to me. the drill sgt knew i was not gonna keep quite about what happen so he threatened me he said that if i said anything he would kill me and make it look like an accident on the feild. at the point in my life i didnt care anymore what he did to me. i went to the chaplin and told him what happened. he didnt belive me despite how beaten and battered my body was despite showing him my ripped and torn quran. i wasnt to the battilion comander and he braught in the drill sgt martin. i was afraid of him afriad of all of them. he didnt belive me eighther his words were. "why shoul;d i believe you a pvt over a mant hat has 17yrs in the army and no blemish on his record" and i was sent away after drill sgt martin called me a liar several times. later that night he stood me infrom of all the training platoons on sandhill and told them iam the enemy iam the reason why we are fighting my people were responsible for 911 out of sapce.....

Link to thread: ...thread328879/pg1

Electric star model now explains every problem facing solar space physics

Created by: ZeuZZ on January 30, flags: 41, replies: 164

I recently read a list of all the outstanding problems in solar physics by Markus J. Aschwanden of the TRACE solar satellite observatory, and I was amazed because nearly every single one of them can easily be answered by the Electric sun model. A rough overview of the model can be seen here;which basically states that the sun is at a high voltage, just like Tesla predicted over a hundreds years ago.

The time has truly come to abandon traditional nuclear core models of the sun.

Here are the problems as outlined in a recent overview of TRACE's work;

"Markus J. Aschwanden Submitted: 2007-03-20 15:39 we look back over the last 6 decades in solar physics and contemplate about 10 outstanding problems (or research focii) in solar physics:

- (1) The solar neutrino problem,
- (2) Structure of the solar interior (helioseismology),
- (3) The solar magnetic field (dynamo, solar cycle, corona),

- (4) Hydrodynamics of coronal loops, -
- (5) MHD oscillations and waves (coronal seismology),
- (6) The coronal heating problem,
- (7) Self-organized criticality (from nanoflares to giant flares,
- (8) Magnetic reconnection processes,
- (9) Particle acceleration processes,
- (10) Coronal mass ejections and coronal dimming.

The first two problems have been largely solved, recently, while the other 8 selected problems are still pending a final solution, and thus remain persistent Challenges for the next Solar Cycle 24, the theme of this jubilee conference.

"

I agree with him that the first two problems have been mainly solved, so i will address the last eight.

I'll quickly outline the main concepts of Electric stars so I can show how they apply to these issues;

* Most of the space within our galaxy is occupied by plasma containing electrons (negative charges) and ionized atoms (positive charges). Every charged particle in the plasma has an electric potential energy (voltage) just as every pebble on a mountain has a mechanical potential energy. The Sun is surrounded by a plasma cell that stretches far out - many times the radius of Pluto. These are facts not hypotheses.

* The Sun is at a more positive electrical potential (voltage) than is the space plasma surrounding it.

* Due to this the sun will emanate an electrical field, just like every other electrically charged object.

* Generally positive ions leave the Sun and electrons enter the Sun. Both of these flows add to form a net positive current leaving the Sun. Because of the Sun's positive charge (voltage), it acts as the anode in a plasma discharge. As such, it exhibits many of the phenomena observed in earthbound plasma experiments, such as anode tufting.

* The Sun may be powered, not from within itself, but from outside, by the electric (Birkeland) currents that flow in our arm of our galaxy as they do in all galaxies.

So, to address the problems with the current models;

- (3) The solar magnetic field (dynamo, solar cycle, corona)

> The solar magnetic field and dynamo would not be so mysterious to astronomy if they accepted that the suns magnetic field is produced by the same thing that produces all magnetic fields; The motion of charge, ie, Electric currents. The fact that the magnetic field is relatively constant implies that the electric currents that produce it are continuous also, and persist for long periods of time.

- (4) Hydrodynamics of coronal loops

> I'm not so sure what the problem is with this, but there have been many observations of electricity causing coronal loops published in astronomy journals, which is highly consistent with the electric sun idea. Here's a few;

This is one of the most popularly cited electrical current theory of solar flares, by the founder of plasma cosmology, Hannes Alfvén; and followed up by this one;

more recent; Towards the circuit theory of solar flares, Zaitsev, V. V.; Stepanov, A.

And this paper looks at the effects of Birkeland currents on solar flares;

Solar flares are electrical in nature, caused by the separation of charge in some shape of form. Even conventional astronomers have accepted this, although they don't extrapolate what effects this electricity could have on other areas of the sun, in their opinion the rest of the sun is slowly convecting gas, not effected by the immense electrical currents that run throughout it. However most plasma cosmologists will tell them that this is not the case, and that if we are to understand the sun correctly more work needs to be done on understanding the electrics of the sun so we can build a complete process orientated model of the current circuit inside, and outside, the sun.

(5) MHD oscillations and waves (coronal seismology)

>This stems from astronomers using many completely different models to explain the coronal heating and acceleration problems. Last time I checked there were over twenty different mechanisms for coronal seismology. Many of these could be resolved by applying the effects the sun's electrical fields would have on particles in the corona. (ref; (links removed, visit the thread for external references) - Swedish Institute of Space Physics)

"During the past 50 years there have been many attempts to solve this outstanding problem in astrophysics, and there are more than 20 different models and mechanisms for coronal heating proposed in the literature; see reviews [6-8]"

(6) The coronal heating problem (and the more general problem of why there is a corona at all)

> This is one of the main problems with current models that is very hard to explain. The temperature of the corona far exceeds the temperature of the surface of the sun by millions of degrees. This is an explicit violation of the inverse square law for radiation. However, if the sun is attracting its energy remotely in the first place, you don't have this problem, as the first place you would expect to see this energy expressed is above the surface. Infact the standard model fails to answer the more basic question of why is the corona there at all? The standard model neither predicts nor explains it; it is obviously an electrical effect.

[edit on 30-1-2008 by ZeuZZ]

Link to thread: ...thread330624/pg1

3 Overlooked Causes for World War III

Created by: thelibra on January 8, flags: 39, replies: 63

When asked what will cause World War III, most people will immediately say "The Middle East". Try it, it's a fun experiment. However, the truth is most nations have known what the Middle East is like for hundreds of years, and have managed to prevent having an all out global war so far. While it's certainly possible that this region will eventually cause WWIII, I'd like to examine three almost entirely overlooked causes that will almost certainly cause a World War if not addressed in the very near future. If nothing else, they are each ticking time-bombs with a span of a few decades or less before all hell breaks loose.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(visit the thread to view linked images)

SUMMARY: China, faced with an imminent food and (links removed, visit the thread for external references), has proposed, approved, and begun the (links removed, visit the thread for external references) to divert many rivers to increase its arable land capacity. The Brahmaputra River is one of the rivers chosen for diversion. Currently it feeds into eastern India, and is a vital source of water and tributaries there. If diverted, eastern India will be in an immediate water crisis, both for drinking and farming, and roughly a million people stand to lose their home, lives, or both. Both countries are at (links removed, visit the thread for external references) with one another, and literally millions of lives depend on the fate of this river. If China proceeds with the diversion, India will consider it an act of war, and will act accordingly. If China doesn't complete the diversion, millions of Chinese will end up dying as a result of water and food shortage. Both are enormously populated nuclear powers and fully committed to their stance.

OUTCOME: If a nuclear exchange does not take place, India will most likely be defeated by Chinese conventional warfare unless assisted by equally strong allies, such as the United States. China would follow suit, and the UN would quickly find itself polarized by two most powerful members. World War would be the inevitable next step unless a compromise were reached. If nuclear exchange does take place between India and China, India may find itself without allies, and destroyed by China. In a "best-case" scenario, millions will find themselves displaced or dead by the removal of half India's water source. There is no "good" outcome to this situation.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(visit the thread to view linked images)

SUMMARY: Few people consider the incredible impact that one country's sole ownership of The North Pole would have. It is estimated that a fourth of the world's undiscovered gas and oil is present there, along with other strategic resources like uranium, titanium, and gold. Additionally, as global climate change shrinks the polar caps, the North Pole will soon become the quickest sea route between 3 continents, and five major countries, each of which claims ownership despite international law that states no country shall have ownership of the North Pole. (links removed, visit the thread for external references), (links removed, visit the thread for external references), (links removed, visit the thread for external references), (links removed, visit the thread for external references), and (links removed, visit the thread for external references) all have placed various claims on the area. In fact, now (links removed, visit the thread for external references) can attempt to place a claim on the area. With such an incredible wealth of economic and strategic advantage at stake over an area rife with controversy, it is only a matter of time before one country attempts a squat and violence ensues.

OUTCOME: Between their planting of a flag on the sea bed, and new evidence suggesting their continental shelf extends all the way to the pole, and a powerful military and economic backing to enforce its claim, Russia is the most likely to attempt the first squat. While Norway, Denmark, and Canada may demand UN sanctions as a result, the U.S., threatened by both the military proximity of their traditional nemesis as well as the loss of countless potential resources, will most likely threaten military action against Russia. With the incredibly (links removed, visit the thread for external references) in Russia, the advent of (links removed, visit the thread for external references), and the view that America's military is significantly weakened as the result of the Iraq war, Russia will most likely not back down until violence escalates between the two nuclear nations. This may in turn be seen as an ideal opportunity for Russia, North Korea, and China to create a joint venture to strengthen the Russian position in the region, prompting the U.S., Canada, and their respective allies to respond in kind. With so much at stake, it is highly unlikely the situation will be resolved peacefully. (links removed, visit the thread for external references) (visit the thread to view linked images)

SUMMARY: we've known since (links removed, visit the thread for external references) that the world population was outgrowing its food supply. Historically, countless wars have been waged in order to increase agricultural productivity. (links removed, visit the thread for external references) helped to assuage this briefly, by improving grain output by about 250%. Even still, of all the nations on Earth, only a handful export grain, and the United States provides (links removed, visit the thread for external references) of those exports. Taking into effect the increased demands on U.S. food supply by a growing population made more so through immigration, the paving over of arable land, the finite nature of some resources, erosion and pollution, it is estimated that the U.S. will have to start scaling back food exports as of 2020 until by 2050 there are not only will all food exports have halted, but that the American population itself will have begun to exceed its own food supply. Food costs in America will be about 3-5 times what they are today. That is not to say that a dollar's worth of food will cost $3-5, but rather if you currently spend about 10% of your income on food, you can expect it to account for 30-50% of your income. Costs will continue to rise until either the demand placed upon the food supply is significantly decreased around the world (estimates place this anywhere from 1/3 to 2/3 the population, depending on the country).

OUTCOME: Third world countries will outstrip their ability to feed themselves long before America does. Several nations survive only through humanitarian aid, which will decrease further and further as increased demand for the dwindling food supply increases. Nations that do not completely collapse under the weight of riots, mass starvation, and debt incurred to buy food, will find themselves flooded with refugees from those that do, further straining the food supply of the more stable nations. As the problem worsens, every nation will likely enact a strict rationing system and birth control measures, until even that proves insufficient to handle the load. The world will split into those willing to commit mass genocide to feed those that remain, and those willing to go to war to prevent said genocide from happening. To the victor will go the farmland.

If anyone has questions, or additional possible causes for WWII outside the typical responses, I'd love to hear or discuss them.

Link to thread: ...thread325587/pg1

Life on Mars? Amazing photos from NASA probe reveal image of mystery figure on Red Planet

Created by: Enceladus on January 22, flags: 39, replies: 226

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Images beamed back from Mars would suggest so - although to sceptics, it could just be a strange rock formation.

Nasa's Mars Explorer Spirit sent back images from the surface of the Red Planet four years ago, and there was initial disappointment among scientists that they lacked any signs of life.

But space and science fiction enthusiasts are convinced there is more than meets the eye, and after years of studying the images, have found what appears to be an alien figure walking downhill."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread328515/pg1

How 'Mystery Space Orbiters' (F.A.S.T.) were filmed.

Created by: Johnbro on January 12, flags: 38, replies: 51
(post moved from buried thread)

Firstly, I believe that the images are of much less value than the method - or thoughts further provoked. I really don't care much about the 'Interstellar' video content - Mr. Walson's endeavouring to become a billionaire over this... etc. And I truly don't want to become embroiled in the controversy of this debate. It is simply that myself - and now - daily, more around the globe are coming forth with simple images... taken over their homelands - that bear a certain similarity.

The equipment I used to get my modest little images - was a mere hand-held Canon Power Shot Digital Elph SD750. I don't know all of the specs of the CCD ... etc. I did 'zoom in' - which in my case - was a max of 12 X. This object was located in the southwestern sky - approximately 20 degrees up on the horizon - below - and in the general vicinity of the constellation 'Orion.' It was completely visible to the naked eye. Time of the sightings were regularly between 2100 and 2300 hrs - EST, USA.

If folks go to the following (and forementioned) hyperlink - they can left-click on the images - and this will open up files that are 7.1 megs of digital information.

These aren't random chance sightings. There is a childishly-simple approach that we are taking to find what I refer to as 'Chameleon Stars.' I call them this... not because they hide against a background... but because they apparently change colors. They continue to be odd-looking & moving, relative to the rest of the 'ordinary' stars.

They are flashing reds, blues and greens - when all of the rest are pale white. As I look into a clear night sky - I scan across the horizon - investigating each azimuth - and always, with my naked eye - can I find 2 or 3 standouts - they are almost always literally in the four corners of the sky. As I watched them closer - I would sometimes see small specks of light seemingly jumping off of them. It almost appears as if they are spinning.

The first time I noticed them was back in 1994, over Los Angeles, California. When I looked at one through a telescope... it looked like a cardboard roll... like when the TP is all gone from the restroom. Not being funny really... that was the shape of it. Another time... I found one that looked like the 'Bat plane' - and I later saw the exact shape on a video taken by a space shuttle mission. Was odd coincidence.

This has been around for a very long time.

Actually, resumed shooting these images - a couple of months ago. I now have a catalogue of them for verification posted. I have also been posting a diary of my observations (with pictures) on a thread at UFOcasebook. Go down the following page about half-way... and look for the 'notched disk' image. The story will commence there.

So, in conclusion - it is my belief that all Mr. Walson is doing is; (with the aid of a high-powered zoom lens - a 'High 8' or better videocam - [Fugitron would be perfect... but cost prohibitive.]

- 1) Visually locating the 'chameleon stars'
- 2) Aligning the object into his viewfinder --
- 3) Fully 'racking-out' the 'zoom' to 'infinity'- then disabling 'auto focus' function -
- 4) And pressing 'record'

After that, some manual camera tracking may be required as well.

I say that anyone can do this. I don't know.... or really care about Mr. Walson and his videos. I just know what I saw and recorded. I firmly believe - with similar images coming from across the world - that it is the same thing.

Nothing is truly debunked in a message forum. Topics can only be pro or con to the general consensus. Aggressive posters implying 'Because I said so' - means absolutely nothing.

Just my opinion

Link to thread: ...thread326465/pg1

Alex Jone's Endgame: Blueprint for Global Enslavement

Created by: AboveTopSecret.com on January 21, flags: 36, replies: 77

For the New World Order, a world government is just the beginning. Once in place they can exact their plan to end 80% of the population and help the select, "chosen few" of the planet live forever!with the aid of advanced technology.

In Endgame, documentary filmmaker Alex Jones chronicles the history of the global elite's bloody rise to power and reveals how they have funded dictators and financed the bloodiest wars!using order out of chaos to pave the way for the first true world empire.

Never before has a documentary assembled all the pieces of the globalists' dark agenda. Endgame's compelling look at past atrocities committed by those attempting to steer the future delivers information that the controlling media has meticulously censored for over 60 years, fully revealing the elite's agenda to dominate the earth and carry out the most wicked plan in all of human history.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(visit the thread to view linked images)

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Visit the (links removed, visit the thread for external references) for more titles from AboveTopSecret.com

This title is presented under special license from The Disinformation Company and authorized exclusively for Internet streaming on AboveTopSecret.com. Unauthorized duplication or video extraction is strictly prohibited unless prior written permission is obtained from The Disinformation Company -- Disinfo.com

Link to thread: ...thread328301/pg1

Ufo Fryazino (UFO over Fryazino" Stihiya, NTV channel)

Created by: oLDWoRLDDiSoRDeR on January 28, flags: 36, replies: 76

Found a new one on youtube. (new to me)
Not sure if it has been discussed before . But this one has a news report to go with it .
Here is the video

(isit the thread to view linked videos)

And here is the report. Titled: "UFO over Fryazino" Stihiya, NTV channel

(isit the thread to view linked videos)

Ran a search and found nothing . Let me know what ya think . I know its kinda out there but it has n news report with it , I'll leave it up to you to decide.

(I have no speakers so if the video is in some weird language i'm sorry)

Link to thread: ...thread330052/pg1

The Truth About Christopher Columbus

Created by: thelibra on January 24, flags: 35, replies: 74

Who was Christopher Columbus? Was he really the first to discover America? Did he really do it to prove the Earth was round? Is there a reason the continents he discovered weren't called Columbia? What is the real truth about Christopher Columbus? Even on ATS, I've read a lot of threads with wrong information and assumptions about Columbus and the discovery of America. It is for this reason, I've decided to write this contextual history answering the biggest questions about the man. Read on, to find it out. Some of it you probably already knew, some of it you probably suspected, and some of it will probably surprise you. Common sense should immediately indicate Columbus was not the first to discover America, otherwise he wouldn't have encountered natives.

Human remains in America that we have found so far date back as early as (links removed, visit the thread for external references). The three primary trains of thought as to where the natives came from are:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references) -

Mongolians crossed a land bridge from Eastern Siberia, across the Bering Strait, and over to Alaska, then migrated their way southward, somewhere between 16-11,000 years ago.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references) -

First proven possible by Thor Heyerdahl in the Kon-tiki, it is entirely possible that mankind was perfectly capable of crafting boats from native materials and safely navigating them through the Polynesian Islands till landing on the West Coast, thus allowing for a continuous stream of people to migrate to America throughout the ages.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references) -

Most Native American tribes had a creation legend of some sort that states that they've always been there since the point of creation, rather than having migrated. This is not technically theory, as there are no scientific data to be analyzed and tested. It is belief, but is worth including for discussion's sake.

In any event, America was originally discovered thousands of years before Columbus. So then one must further qualify the statement.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references), but didn't tell anyone about it because it was a prime fishing spot. America's coasts were a Basque's best-kept trade secret, and the massive hauls they could procure off of an unoccupied coast were a major contributing factor to their fame as fisherman.

Then of course, there's the story most of you know about the viking Leif Erikson discovering America first. Except that this is a very common mistake that even school teachers will make. In point of fact, (links removed, visit the thread for external references), by accident in AD 986, while trying to meet his father (who was part of Erik the Red's traveling party) on Greenland. When he realized he was in the wrong place, he turned around, found Greenland, told his father about it, who told Erik the Red, who's son, Leif, then went to the spot Bjarne described, and thus explored Newfoundland.

However, all firsts must be qualified with the phrase "that we know of," because a 9200 year old human fossil known as (links removed, visit the thread for external references) was found in the state of Washington that completely breaks all known genetic rules of native inhabitants. The skull and facial reconstruction of Kennewick man are more like "a Caucasoid European accountant" than a Paleo-Indian hunter. To add further controversy, he was apparently killed with a weapon that didn't see common use until 5000-8000 years ago.

So why does Columbus get credit as being the first to discover it? A few reasons:

No one else claimed widespread credit - Quick question? Who invented the light bulb? Thomas Edison, right? Wrong. It was Joseph Swan, 50 years before Jefferson. Jefferson simply told a big lie, and told it enough times, that people believed it. People believe what they are told, because they rarely have a reason not to. Now in actuality, Columbus didn't even claim to have discovered The New World. As of his third voyage to America, he still thought he was still in the Indies, off the coast of East Asia, for reasons we'll discuss later.

Columbus had a publicist - In 1507 (links removed, visit the thread for external references) was the first (that we know of) to realize and map that North and South America were a separate continent, and not, in fact, the eastern coast of Asia, based on the detailed accounts of explorer and cartographer Amerigo Vespucci had written. Unfortunately for Columbus, Waldseemüller mistakenly thought that Amerigo had, thus, been the one to discover the new world. So he latinized the name, and the West Indies became America. Later, in 1513, he was made aware of this mistake, and tried to correct his mistake, renaming it alternately "The Indies" or "Terra Incognita", and correcting his publishings to state that Columbus had, in fact, been the first to discover the New World. However, news traveled slowly. By this time, six years had passed, everyone who already knew about Waldseemüller's map was already calling the new land America, and the map itself was still being spread into new areas. The newer map name never really caught on, but thanks to the publishings of Waldseemüller, Christopher Columbus was at least firmly established as the Discoverer of the New World.

None of this actually mattered to Columbus himself, who died in 1506.

After (links removed, visit the thread for external references), Europe as a whole fell apart at the seams. What had once been a unified continent had become countless war-torn nations, always changing hands and boundaries. Almost no one traveled, almost nothing was produced, and nearly every technology and work of literature was lost. Imagine if, in America, we lost all electricity, gas, running water, international, interstate, even intercity trade. In the desperate attempt to simply survive with no more distribution of food, water, and infrastructure, one's choices were to either live off the land, or live off the good graces of the local warlord. In one short generation, the great minds died off or busied themselves trying to find something to eat, and everyone else pretty much followed suit.

As a result, Europe became an ignorant backwater area of men who had become little more than animals with weapons. There wasn't even a concept of economics, and thoughts of anything more than a couple of miles away simply didn't occur. No one traveled, except perhaps to raid their neighbors for food, women, and land. It was a terrible, ruthless time, though also an understandable result of starting from scratch when civilization simply ceases to exist. For over 500 years, these barbarians were only held in check by those with military might, and The Church. Anyone who wasn't Catholic was one of Them, and one of Them (usually Jews or Muslims) were, in merciful times, banished and run out of town at spear point, or alternately just killed.

The rest of the world, however, had done pretty well for itself. Over in the Muslim lands, art, science, and commerce had flourished. Jews and other non-Muslims were even rather warmly tolerated, needing to pay only a token tax to be allowed to exercise their religions freely. As a result, ideas were rather freely exchanged, discussed, and evolved. Mosques were not just places of worship, they were places of learning, of study of arts, sciences, and economics, to the point that (links removed, visit the thread for external references) that lasted about 500 years. In turn, Agriculture flourished, especially a wide variety of spices.

Now, around AD 1000, the Church, which was the only trans-continental unifying force, had a monopoly on education in Europe, and Jerusalem, the Holy Land, was considered to be, literally, the center of the Universe. When the Muslim Empire expanded westward into Anatolia, and the Eastern Orthodox Byzantine Empire called for help from the Church, the Church raised an army, promising that each person who died fighting would automatically go to heaven, that all sins previous to their fighting in the Crusade would be forgiven (including those committed en route to battle), that it was okay to kill non-Christians, and that they could keep any spoils they found along the way. Since about the only thing Europe was good at at this point was killing, taking other people's stuff, and being good Catholics, the first army saw massive numbers join up, and (links removed, visit the thread for external references) saw its inception.

But no one had any idea how to equip, move, march, and feed an army of that size, or to get it from Point A to Point B. Literally, the science of Logistics had to begin development in Europe. So these people who, for the last 20 generations, had never traveled more than a couple of miles, figured out how to launch long-distance expeditions involving many, many people.

Moving forward, after several Crusades, and people traveling back and forth between Europe and Jerusalem, the Europeans realized that all the wealth in the world was concentrated around the Indian Ocean. They had gold, art, music, science, gadgets, literature, and the crown jewel of everything, Spices. When you live in a hellish backwater where your nightly meal is either the same grains you've been growing for 500 years, or whatever boiled meat you could manage to find, and even so much as having salt was a luxury, the concept of spices was magical. The art was pretty, the science was neat, the gadgets were nifty, and the gold was shiny, but to a barbarian, Spiced food was heaven on Earth. Enough so that (links removed, visit the thread for external references).

Now the problem was this. The coastlines of the Indian Ocean were really far away. The lands were terribly treacherous, and bandits didn't make the trip any better. This made such journeys to obtain spices rather seldom and very expensive. If they could only get there by boat, they could cut costs dramatically, but how?

The first idea that might occur to one is to sail around Africa, but keep in mind the terrible ignorance that gripped Europe as a result of 500 years of no educational system, and no long-distance travel. All one knows for certain is that if you go far enough North, the land is pure ice, and you freeze to death. If you travel South, it gets hotter and hotter. It stands to reason that if you travel far enough south, eventually you would encounter a land of fire, and you would burn to death. So for centuries, Europeans never even thought to try seeing if there was even a way around Southern Africa.

However, technology advanced, slowly but surely, and eventually Europe saw more and more navigational equipment, such as the compass, astrolabe, and the caravel, as well as great advances in mapmaking, ideology, and (thanks largely to the failures of later Crusades) independence from the confines of Church thought, made the idea of long-distance boat travel possible. In the latter half of the 15th century, the Portuguese, lead by (links removed, visit the thread for external references), began experiments to see if Africa could, in fact be sailed around, and in 1486, Bartholomeu Dias proved it, though Henry had died by this point.

However, it was still a long journey, and Spain, Portugal's main competition, was looking for their own route to the Indian Ocean's wealth, but was completely tied up the Reconquista to recover Spain from the Moors, and couldn't spare the money or the focus for such an expedition, much less, had no men who would even know how to make such a journey.

Along comes Columbus, experienced, educated Genoan sailor who has, for years, been gathering an indisputable case that he can sail west across the Atlantic, all the way to the Indian Ocean. He has knowledge, maps, math, books, and everything he needs to back up his claim, except money. He needs a lot of money. He tries England and France, but they are too busy with wars and domestic affairs, and pay him little mind. He tries Spain, who were interested, but they were far too busy with the Reconquista, and then tries Portugal.

The Portuguese almost hire him. Almost. Unfortunately, in the course of negotiations with Columbus, Dias returned and proclaimed that, not only had he found the Southern tip of Africa, but that he also did not, in fact, burst into flames! The Portuguese thanked Columbus for his time, and showed him the door.

In 1492, the Reconquista ended. Spain was once again whole, and looking to get in on the action in the Indian Ocean. Columbus makes his sales pitch to Isabella, who almost turns him down because of his ludicrous demands (10% of all wealth, and ownership of any lands he finds), but her advisers inform her they can just agree to it now, and kill him afterward, assuming he even returns from sea.

So, on August 3rd, three seaworthy caravels, the Nina, Pinta, and Santa Maria, each about the size of a double-wide trailer home, begin their journey west, after stopping briefly in the Canary Islands for Provisions. The plan was that he would sail about 4000 miles, land somewhere off the Eastern coast of Asia, and discover a shortcut to the vast wealth that the Indian Ocean held.

Thus, he did it mostly for Spices.

There are several common misconceptions about why Columbus sailed the ocean blue. The biggest being "to prove the Earth was round."

Educated people already knew the Earth was round. In fact, the first known globe was invented as early as 1490 by (links removed, visit the thread for external references). (links removed, visit the thread for external references) is the earliest known literature to claim it. (links removed, visit the thread for external references) (276BC - 194BC) even went so far as to rather accurately calculate the Earth's circumference. Even up to around AD820, (links removed, visit the thread for external references) used two surveyor teams to discover the Earth's radius.

Even the idea of sailing across the ocean to India was not unique or unheard of. Right around the millennial turn of BC to AD, (links removed, visit the thread for external references) from Europe. Unfortunately, Strabo played rather fast and loose with his numbers, and inexplicably ended up reducing the stated size of the Earth from Eratosthenes's estimated 250,000 stadia to 180,000, and further claimed that half of 180,000 was 70,000.

As is often the case, one work gets based upon the findings of another, which becomes the basis for another, and by the time (links removed, visit the thread for external references) is released, the Earth's size is fully 25% less than accurate.

However, the fact remains that mankind had known for well over a thousand years that the Earth was round, and this was commonly accepted as fact by the educated, explorers, and merchants. In fact, the only people who didn't know the Earth was flat were typically the common layperson who lived and died within a couple of miles from home, who never had cause to travel, read a book, or accept any truth other than the truths it took to feed them each day, and whatever they were told by the Church. Even the Church knew the Earth was round, they simply refused to take it into consideration, because it opened far too many questions about the veracity of the Bible, despite there being several Bible quotes that even allude to the Earth being round (though other quotes also claim it to be flat). At a time when the Church was the only unifying force holding together a fractured, backwater continent that had only recently pulled itself out of the Dark Ages, followed by the worst Plague in human history, it could not afford to show any sign of weakness or uncertainty. It was not that they were violently opposed to the idea of a round Earth, it was that they simply did not like to admit any change that might unseat their authoritative grip on accepted truths. Thus, it is understandable that despite being faced with logic, reason, and science, the church would seldom ever change its mind on any subject.

However, it was not the Church that Columbus wanted to impress. Contrary to popular opinion, Columbus was a very educated, experienced, and intelligent man. He was meticulous and methodical in his approach to proving he could sail west to the Indian Ocean. He had read up on all of the accepted scientific texts of the time, including Ptolemy, and Ma'mun

Unfortunately, due to the difference between Arabian and Greek measurements, Ma'mun's rather accurate radius estimate got cut in half, which meshed perfectly with the Ptolemy texts based off of Strabo's inaccurate numbers. Even the famed physician, astronomer, and mathematician (links removed, visit the thread for external references) had estimated the distance from Lisbon, Spain, west to Japan to be only 3000 miles, and to China only 5000 miles.

Columbus, therefore, had every reason to expect that, not only was the world round, but that around 4000-5000 miles west of Europe, he would find the Eastern coast of Asia. He really had done his homework, and everything known at the time backed him up. Only the Church held a different view, and only because of political reasons, not for lack of knowledge or proof.

Link to thread: ...thread329091/pg1

Thinking for Yourself is Now a Crime--must read for ATS'ers

Created by: palehorse23 on January 5, flags: 34, replies: 89
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Harman's bill is called the "Violent Radicalization and Homegrown Terrorism Prevention Act. "When HR 1955 becomes law, it will create a commission tasked with identifying extremist people, groups, and ideas. The commission will hold hearings around the country, taking testimony and compiling a list of dangerous people and beliefs. The bill will, in short, create massive terrorism in the United States. But the perpetrators of terrorism will not be Muslim terrorists; they will be government agents and fellow citizens."(visit the link for the full news article)

Related News Links:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Link to thread: ...thread325007/pg1

Scientists have breakthrough treatment: Reverses Alzheimer's in minutes

Created by: DisabledVet on January 10, flags: 33, replies: 35

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"The new study documents a dramatic and unprecedented therapeutic effect in an Alzheimer's patient: improvement within minutes following delivery of perispinal etanercept, which is etanercept given by injection in the spine. Etanercept (trade name Enbrel) binds and inactivates excess TNF. Etanercept is FDA approved to treat a number of immune-mediated disorders and is used off label in the study."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread326012/pg1

A Bigger Picture (Rise of the NWO)

Created by: jackinthebox on January 10, flags: 33, replies: 110

I debated whether or not to start this thread under General Conspiracy or NWO, but decided that much of what I will post here may not generally fall into the NWO category.

Since starting here on ATS a few months ago with a few "pet" theories that seemed to be independent of each other, I have seen a pattern emerge. I will now post some of what I have found.

Please wait to reply until I have finished posting, which I will make clear in the final post of this piece.

Link to thread: ...thread326109/pg1

Mystery Signal from Outer Space Heard by Arecibo

Created by: Roz47 on January 16, flags: 33, replies: 66

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"KTVU-TV, Channel 2 in San Francisco Bay area, reported yesterday: "Across the globe, researchers searching for signs of life in space were abuzz this week with word that a mystery signal has been picked up by a giant radio-telescope in Puerto Rico. Now the dilemma is -- how do you answer it? Dan Wertheimer of the UC Berkeley SETI Project, said the dilemma is compounded by the fact that the signal may never be completely decoded.

'We probably won't be able to decode it,' he said. 'We'll know something's out there, but we won't know much about their civilization.'"

Back on November 16, 1974, the Arecibo radio telescope was used to send humanity's first message into outer space, which contained basic information about Earth's fundamental chemicals of life, the formula for DNA, a crude diagram of our solar system, simple pictures of male and female human beings and the diameter of the Arecibo dish. See: KTVU-TV. "(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread327363/pg1

This Divided State: Michael Moore at Utah Valley State College

Created by: AboveTopSecret.com on January 17, flags: 32, replies: 51

When liberal filmmaker Michael Moore was invited to speak at Utah Valley State College, it created a firestorm not usually seen in the heart of conservative Mormon country. Would conservative activists prevent Michael Moore from speaking? Would Utah liberals win their fight for freedom of speech? The answer lies somewhere within This Divided State.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

In a conflict that epitomized the battle between red versus blue states in the days leading up to the 2005 election, Michael Moore's invitation to speak at Utah Valley State College created a controversy previously unheard-of in the quiet community. Nestled within a deeply conservative state, the university is located in the heart of Mormon country, and when the invitation to Moore was issued, complete chaos broke out, with vitriol being spewed by proponents of both the right and the left. Petitions were launched, forums and protests held, while Moore supporters were accused of demeaning their religion, the apotheosis of offense. Prominent local businessman Kay Anderson offered a bribe to prevent Moore's engagement, while the UVSC student body president feared for his safety. Fox's Sean Hannity was eventually invited to speak as a counter-balance to Moore, and both speeches are included with with illuminating results. Documentarian Steven Greenstreet was there to document the entire process, after dropping out of college when he heard what was going on. The result is a non-judgmental presentation of the facts that, miraculously, avoids caricature and manages to capture the many shades of gray that are so often eclipsed in the deep divide between the right and the left.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

If you thought the ugly, partisan battle that led up to the 2004 presidential election was the most depressing thing since the Civil War, Steven Greenstreet's excellent documentary about the grand mal kerfuffle that ensued when members of the Utah Valley State College student council invited filmmaker Michael Moore to speak at their school will offer little comfort. Home to a whopping 25,000 students, UVSC is located in Orem, Utah, a town that has dubbed itself, "Family City, USA." Like most places in Utah, Orem and UVSC are overwhelmingly Mormon and, by extension, politically and socially conservative. When word got out that the student council was going to be spending $40,000 to bring Moore, a man who prides himself on being a liberal gadfly, to this picturesque corner of Bush country (Orem boasts a 12-to-1 Republican to Democrat ratio), you'd think Hitler was on his way...

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(visit the thread to view linked images)

(visit the thread to view linked images)

This is part of the ATS Premium Video Collection

Visit the (links removed, visit the thread for external references) for more videos and popular clips.

Link to thread: ...thread327558/pg1

The Smoking (Anti-Aircraft) Guns (of Los Angeles, 1942)

Created by: WitnessFromAfar on January 24, flags: 32, replies: 171

Hello fellow ATS members, thanks for stopping by this thread.

I assure you that your time here will not be wasted.

First and foremost, I have a {THEORY} that the 'Battle of Los Angeles', once properly investigated, will provide everyone with at least ONE case of a truly Unidentified Flying Object, where the most likely explanation that fits the given evidence is that it was a vessel from somewhere outside of Earth.

To prove this theory, I'll first be introducing evidence supporting the reality of the event. This will consist of my (as of now incomplete) report on the event, formatted in the usual style of my Compilation posts, so that everyone can find everything I've found so far.

I will then ask for ATS members assistance in several ways:

1) Following up the spots in the report where the text [NEED DATA] occurs. The items of evidence (and sources) I have not yet been able to acquire will need finding. I'm going to keep on this case until I have the data for all of these blanks. It is my hope that some of you will join me in the pursuit of this data.

2) Debunk the crap out of all of it please. That's right, I'm asking for all of the skeptics here to step up and weigh in on the evidence, once posted, in this thread. I think that every possible explanation needs to be considered, and there is no better team of individuals fit to analyze this data than the collective group of skeptics here at ATS. Perhaps one of us will come up with some rational earthly explanation for this event, to date I haven't been able to do so on my own, and I'd like help from the pros!

3) There are several questions that have never been properly answered pertaining to the details of this event, and I believe that ATS members can work out the values for these variables. These questions will no doubt surface on their own throughout the thread, but here are a few to start:

A) How big is the UFO?

I believe that we can find out, using math, if we can get values for other variables...

B) Where is the Original LA Times Picture taken?

I believe that we can find out, using math and maps, if we can get values for other variables...

C) What are the specs on the AA guns? The Lights? etc.?

I believe that we can find out, by researching, and through teamwork.

I think you can see where this is going.

To date (January 24th, 2008) this event has not been explained, and in fact, I've yet to even see a place where ALL of the data is actually assembled for a thorough investigation. There have been many attempts at analysis by individuals, each only going so far.

I feel that with our collective resources and determination, we at ATS, skeptics and believers alike, can work together to assemble ALL of the data on this event here in this thread. I further feel that once the data is fully assembled, like any puzzle, the picture revealing the true events of February 24th-25th, 1942 will begin to come clear.

Thanks for your time, stay tuned for my report to date. I need to upload all of the images I've acquired so far to Imageshack, so please be patient. I plan to have the entire report (it's lengthy) up at some point today. As always, the links to pertaining ATS threads where this event has already been discussed (I've scoured them for data already) will conclude the report.

-WFA

Link to thread: ...thread329188/pg1

UFOs in Parliament

Created by: IsaacKoi on January 23, flags: 31, replies: 77

Back in 2002/2003, I spent quite a bit of time finding and typing up questions about UFOs asked and answered in the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

As part of that project, I considered a considerable number of different sources - including:

(1) Various relevant sources on the Internet including free web-sites relating to the Houses of Parliament and also commercial services. Unfortunately, these were not very helpful in relation to older material (with few results in relation to the pre-1979 period).

(2) I also examined hard copies of volumes of Hansard. Unfortunately, no cumulative index covering the entirety of Hansard reports is produced. To find each occurrence of a term in the index of Hansard during the 32 year period from 1947 to 1979, it is necessary to examine 32 separate general indices relating to the House of Commons Official Reports and 32 separate general indices to the House of Lords Official Reports. Most of the questions found during the preparation of this working document relating to UFOs are entitled "Unidentified Flying Objects", although (as will be seen from a glance at the results section of this working document) there are a considerable number of other relevant titles (e.g. "Unidentified Craft", "Mr. Nicholas Pope", "Civilian Pilots"). Obviously, if the title to the question does not clearly relate to UFOs, it is very difficult to locate such questions by searching the index.

(3) Other relevant secondary sources examined included:

(a) Numerous government documents relating to UFOs, looking for material relating to questions asked and answered in Parliament;

(b) A considerable number of UFO books. Various books refer to a number of questions on UFOs in the Houses of Parliament. Indeed, at least two books have been published which are based almost entirely on the contents of one debate in the House of Lords in 1979 ("UFOs in the House of Lords - 1979" and John Michel's "House of Lords UFO Debate", Pentacle 1979).

(c) Relevant articles.

In summary, I have limited the scope of this document to:

(a) post-1947 material. Although some material relating to Airships etc was located during the preparation of this working document, a deliberate search for material pre-dating 1947 was not performed due to the difficulties of any such search (due, in particular, to a presumed lack of any consistency in relevant keywords and terms used in indexing such material etc. This problem is presumed given the very gradual decrease in difficulties of this nature that were actually experienced in searching for material post dating 1947);

(b) Hansard material which, even if not entitled "Unidentified Flying Objects" nor explicitly referring to Unidentified Flying Objects, appears to relate to that subject in the light of other questions by the relevant Member of Parliament and/or the fact that the question relates to matters of direct interest to ufologists e.g. questions that relate to organisations, individuals or events that are well-known to readers of material relating to Unidentified Flying Objects (e.g. questions about Nick Redfern, Nick Pope, or DI/55).

Kind Regards,

Isaac Koi

[edit on 23-1-2008 by IsaacKoi]

Link to thread: ...thread328746/pg1

Dozens in Texas town report seeing UFO

Created by: JustMe74 on January 14, flags: 30, replies: 102
(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

" STEPHENVILLE, Texas - In this farming community where nightfall usually brings clear, starry skies, residents are abuzz over reported sightings of what many believe is a UFO.

ADVERTISEMENT

Several dozen people — including a pilot, county constable and business owners — insist they have seen a large silent object with bright lights flying low and fast. Some reported seeing fighter jets chasing it.

"People wonder what in the world it is because this is the Bible Belt, and everyone is afraid it's the end of times," said Steve Allen, a freight company owner and pilot who said the object he saw last week was a mile long and half a mile wide. "It was positively, absolutely nothing from these parts."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread326895/pg1

Energizer "D" Battery Exposed

Created by: Extralien on January 8, flags: 29, replies: 82

Just found this and i think it is an absolute outrage as to the tricks these big companies are up to.

Have you ever bought batteries, used them for a few hours to listen to some music and then you suddenly realise you need to buy some more batteries to keep listening?

Gets expensive, right?

Well, the along comes the revolutionary rechargeable batteries.

Hooray i hear you cry, but not from one man who has made a very interesting discovery.

Mike Adams' investigation into one particular brand of battery is Energizer.

He could not fathom how a D sized battery only gave the power of a AA battery.

Until he ripped an Energizer D cell apart...

I could tell you, or post the photo, but I'm not going to spoil the surprise for you..

Here's an opening snippet from his report with a link.

"Rechargeable batteries are great for the environment. Using them to power your electronics helps conserve valuable metals used in making batteries while preventing the throwing away of alkaline batteries after a single use. Rechargeable NiMH batteries can be reused 1,000 times, effectively replacing 1,000 alkaline batteries and providing portable power at a fraction of the cost of buying 1,000 new batteries."

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Personally I'm not surprised with this kind of scam going on. It's not as though we are not aware of any other types of scam, but how long has this been going on?

How much has Energizer ripped the public off?

To me, the design future of batteries is like getting a cure for the common cold. It's like they know how to make longer lasting power sources, but just wont make it in case it upsets there profit.

I hope you all find this interesting as I'm sure there are a lot of us out there with kids who just got some battery operated item for christmas.

Link to thread: ...thread325459/pg1

The Holocaust is Overrated

Created by: italkyoulisten on January 17, flags: 29, replies: 501

The Holocaust is that one event that everyone learns about. You'll start learning about it in elementary school. By second grade you've probably already heard of this term. By fifth grade you'll have learned that it was a horrible event in which millions of Jewish people died. You'll probably have read Anne Frank's Diary by 7th grade, and probably some Elie Wiesel. In fact, Wiesel's name has such high regard that my spell-check did not underline "Wiesel" in red but would underline "wiesel" in red. Because of this, Hitler is the most famous person in history next to Jesus, assuming he existed.

But the question is why?

Most would answer that it is because the Holocaust is the single worst event in human history.

But they are wrong. I mean, the focus on Jewish deaths should be the first tip off that something is up here. Three million Polish people were exterminated, as well as three million other assorted minorities. Why do they not have a voice? When you talk about the Holocaust, you'd probably immediately think Jewish people.

And the Holocaust was in no way the worst event in history. In fact, at the same time, the atrocities committed by the Japanese in Asia were in my opinion much worse than the events of the Holocaust. And what is weird is that nobody's ever heard of the atrocities in Asia! I mean, it doesn't even have a name for god's sake. So I am gonna refer to it as the AiA. I mean Emperor Hirohito's name is almost unheard of compared to Hitler, but he oversaw the barbaric raping and murdering of an entire continent!

Since the Meiji Restoration, the Japanese schools bred a sense of superiority in its students, on the basis that the Emperor was divine and that they were the Emperor's people, so therefore their purpose was divine. They were taught that other peoples were inherently inferior to them. Then in 1937 they began their invasion of Asia in China, and so much horrible stuff happened. For example, Unit 731 (look it up) was one of many facilities in which human experimentation occurred. PoWs and kidnapped locals would be exposed to certain diseases such as plague and then vivisected just before death to see the effects of the disease on their organs. A lot of other really sick experiments were undertaken, I don't want to get into it, you can look it up. Basically in the end, about 3000 to 10000 people died at Unit 731 in the hands of Dr. Shiro Ishii, who was never charged of any war crimes and died at the age of 67 of throat cancer.

The Japanese raped and pillaged their way through China, killing off whole villages, as they believed other peoples to be equivalent to animals. Almost all women were raped, young and old. Hundreds of thousands (I think, I'm not sure about that number) Korean women were kidnapped and forced into sex slavery at "Service Stations" for Japanese soldiers. They killed so many people that Japanese soldiers began to describe it as "monotonous" and "boring" and began to make games out of killing people. The epitome of the brutality was seen during the Nanjing Massacre, in which 300,000 civilians were sadistically killed. Women were raped repeatedly and were subject to having objects thrust up their vaginas, including beer bottles, sticks, and even grenades. They would make amulets out of the pubic hair of virgins that they raped because they believed it would bring good fortune. The killing for the soldiers were too boring so they decided to make it fun by torturing their victims. One of the "fun" methods was to bury you halfway in the ground and let dogs tear you apart while you are helpless. Another is forcing people onto the roof of a building and then setting it on fire. I mean if you want to know more just look it up, basically it was ridiculous. Estimates of Chinese civilian deaths go up to 20 million! The worst is not the number of killed but in the way they met their deaths, as they were all made to suffer.

Hold on for part 2 of post

Link to thread: ...thread327448/pg1

Defunct Spy Satellite Falling From Orbit

Created by: chucktaggart on January 26, flags: 29, replies: 393

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"A large U.S. spy satellite has lost power and propulsion and could hit the Earth in late February or March, government officials said Saturday.

The satellite, which no longer be controlled, could contain hazardous materials, and it is unknown where on the planet it might come down, they said. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because the information is classified as secret.

"(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread329610/pg1

Sighting over Mexico January 26th, 2008 VERY REAL!!!!

Created by: hsur2112 on January 29, flags: 29, replies: 99

This is some really cool recent footage from Mexico. I would love to hear what you guys think.

(isit the thread to view linked videos)

I don't thing that this has been posted yet, sorry if it has.

Link to thread: ...thread330389/pg1

Scientists Confirm Significant Global Cooling Coming

Created by: Indy on January 5, flags: 27, replies: 132

I think many of us expect global climate change. I also think that most of us expecting climate change were looking at either warming caused by pollution or cooling caused by a collapse of the Gulf Stream. Like soldiers we were secured in our position with our rifles pointed out over the open field. We waited patiently for the invading armies to come marching over the hill. We were poised to defend our position.

Then the tension is broke as someone taps on our collective shoulder. We turn around to find the invading army standing behind us.

It a not so amusing way this is what we are facing. Scientists have confirmed that we are facing significant global cooling as a result of what is expected to be a very weak solar cycle #25. It is also thought that the cooling could start in cycle #24. Cycle #24 starts this spring and the cooling could start within three years.

"We today confirm the recent announcement by NASA that there are historic and important changes taking place on the sun's surface. This will have only one outcome - a new climate change is coming that will bring an extended period of deep cold to the planet. This is not however a unique event for the planet although it is critically important news to this and the next generations. It is but the normal sequence of alternating climate changes that has been going on for thousands of years. Further according to our research, this series of solar cycles are so predictable that they can be used to roughly forecast the next series of climate changes many decades in advance. I have verified the accuracy of these cycles' behavior over the last 1,100 years relative to temperatures on Earth, to well over 90%."

Source: Space and Science Research Center

In May of 2006 NASA reported:

"The slowdown we see now means that Solar Cycle 25, peaking around the year 2022, could be one of the weakest in centuries," says Hathaway."

Source: NASA

Unless you live in a cave and ride a bike you are fully aware of the rapidly rising energy prices. Global supplies are strained as demand continues to soar in counties like China. A cooling planet will put a bigger strain on energy supplies as the demand for heating oil, natural gas, and coal increases. Oil hit $100 per barrel for the first time ever just a day or two ago. Combining peak oil with global cooling is going to force difficult challenges up us.

But it could be worse right? Yes it could. And it may very well be. There are signs that the currents which drive our oceans could be very unstable. It appears the Gulf Stream has halted on more than one occasion in the past couple of years. With the addition of more fresh water the current could become even more unstable making it possible that it halts during the next solar minimum. I would call that about as close to a worst case scenario as possible. Something like this has the ability to thrust us into something far worse than the little ice age.

A little salt in the wound could be a global economy straining and about to crumble under the weight of debt. People will be forced to default on debt in order to pay for food and warmth. This however is the one area of all that can be corrected. Each of us on the individual level still has time to correct our personal debt load. This could help us adjust to soaring energy prices that will surely plague is for decades to come.

Panic is not necessary. We are smart enough to adapt and we have time to prepare. I'll post some ideas for dealing with this situation once people have a chance to read this and respond.

Link to thread: ...thread324945/pg1

Israeli Mid-Air UFO explosion

Created by: internos on January 3, flags: 27, replies: 64

IMHO, this case is worthy to be discussed.

A series of still frames extracted from a UFO Video originating from Israel and the explaining article.

"By Barry Chamish

Yet another landmark event in the eleven year long Israeli UFO wave has taken place. In what appears to be a historical first, a mid-air crash between two UFOs has been video-taped.

Link to thread: ...thread324494/pg1

Soviet Moon Images

Created by: olegkvasa on January 7, flags: 27, replies: 70

Hello guys.

Don't know if anyone has found this site before but it seems to be a very nice collection of high-res soviet moon images. No strange air-brushing. :P

Havent had a good chance to look through all of them but im sure you lot will have them under the scope within the hour. (looks at Zorgon and Mike)

Example:

(visit the thread to view linked images)

The Site:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Have fun

Link to thread: ...thread325294/pg1

Barack Obama will be The Anti Christ

Created by: SteveR on January 27, flags: 27, replies: 565

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Explain?

The Anti Christ is a Uniter. He is a man of many allegiances. He is the black sheep. He is deeply inspiring and popular. He floats on the desperation of the masses. He is the great deceiver. He demands difference. He seeks power, and will sell his soul to get there.

All of these statements apply to Him at the time of writing.

Uniter: Obama has white, black, male and female support - support in every demographic in South Carolina and many places across the United States.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Allegiances: Obama is a member of the Trinity United Church of Christ, an African-American fundamentalist Christian only club. He was also a Muslim, still practicing we do not know for certain. Obama was raised in America and the Far East by a white mother and black father. (links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Popularity: Coming out of relatively isolated state politics, inexperienced Obama sweeps the nation with the status and crowd grabbing power of a superstar. Where did it come from? The Anti Christ is the void that all pile their hopes and dreams into.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Deception: "On Iraq my position is no different than George Bush's". Bill Clinton has done a fair share to expose Obama's lies. The anti-war and change ticket has been thoroughly compromised, yet no uproar from Obama supporters. No mass desertion. All continues on like magic. Nothing can stop prophecy.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Power: To put it lightly, Obama has long obsessed about power, and the Presidency, even from his studious years in the far east.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

He is The False Messiah.

The actual prophecy criteria:

- 1.- He will come as a man of Peace (Obama promises peace in Iraq, defeat for the US)
- 2.- He will come mounted on a white Female horse (Obama mother is white who had 6 African husbands)
- 3.- He will come to deceive(Obama says he's a Christian but in fact he was born a Muslim, practices the Islamic religion, prays Friday's facing Mecca)
- 4.- He will make himself the most powerful man on earth, if elected
- 5.- He will try to destroy the Jewish People and Israel (Obama has said he loves the Arabs specially the Palestinians, hates Israel and Jews. Admires Hitler, Osama etc)
- 6.- He will present himself as good and righteous but in fact he's Satan himself. Violence is in his heart
- 7.- Obama will help Al Qaida in its evil projects.
- 8.- Barack Hussein Obama is the "King of the South" predicted in the Bible.(Daniel .11, Kenya is south of Jerusalem)
- 9.- Obama comes to implant muslim Sharia Law upon America."

Barack Obama says he wants to bring Change. I believe him.

Remember, you will know the truth in your soul.

Trust your Instincts

"People can think what they want about me, I could really give a hoot. People think that the AC is coming out of the mid-east. My personal belief is that the AC is going to rise right out of the UN, and with this guys popularity, charisma, and how he is climbing the ranks in government real fast!!!, He may be in the UN next."

"When I first heard of Barak, a few days ago, the first thing I heard is that he is a guy who came out of nowhere and now many flock to his side. When my wife and I heard this, we both thought the same thing, the anti-christ. Now I am not claiming him to be, just something that triggered that thought in both of us."

"My sister and I both feel something "spooky" about this guy, but can't quite figure out what it is. It is odd that strangers come up to him on the street. Why would they do that, unless they were drawn to him."

"I don't think we should directly label Obama as AC, but it is very interesting. While I was watching him, the VERY FIRST thought that came to my mind was asking the Lord if I was looking at the AC. I don't have a big opinion either way, but man, that was pretty scary."

[edit on 2008/1/27 by SteveR]

Link to thread: ...thread329728/pg1

U.S. military reports "significant confrontation" between 5 Iranian vessels...

Created by: Navieko on January 7, flags: 26, replies: 284

[headline]U.S. military reports "significant confrontation" between 5 Iranian vessels and 3 U.S. naval ships in Persian Gulf[/headline]

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"U.S. military reports "significant confrontation" between 5 Iranian vessels and 3 U.S. naval ships in Persian Gulf. Details soon."(visit the link for the full news article)

[edit on 7/1/08 by Navieko]

Link to thread: ...thread325287/pg1

Paypal Freezes New Hampshire Recount Funds

Created by: InSanE1 on January 16, flags: 26, replies: 69

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Paypal has frozen the fundraising account of the Granny Warriors, a Ron Paul supporters group who had been pushing for a recount in New Hampshire, causing a 3pm Tuesday deadline to be missed and the application rejected for lack of payment.

The Granny Warriors had raised the necessary $55,600 deposit for the recount but at the last minute before it was transferred to the New Hampshire Secretary of State, Paypal blocked access to the funds.

No explanation has been forthcoming from Paypal as to why the corporation froze the account.

"(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread327273/pg1

Petition for new Consciousness Forum

Created by: biggie smalls on January 16, flags: 26, replies: 124

I wasn't quite sure where to post this, but I figured most of the people posting in such a forum would have their roots in here and possibly the Aliens & UFO area. I am testing the waters to see if there is any support for a new mysterious subjects forum probably entitled 'Consciousnes.'

This would be mostly an experiential forum from meditation, maybe scientific discoveries relating to the brain/consciousness (you cannot have one without the other although consciousness does not stem from the brain in my opinion), alternative healing (reiki, prayer, etc), out of body experiences, and general contact with beings not relating to UFO sightings.

Would anyone support the creation of such a forum?

I am not sure how much power an average ATS member has in creating a new forum, but if there was enough people voicing support it may help.

What does everyone think?

SkyFloating posted a similar idea in the 'what could we improve' in the business forum, but nothing ever happened on that one.

Thanks for reading,

G

Link to thread: ...thread327361/pg1

New inflation data explain middle-class squeeze

Created by: SEEWWHATUDO on January 17, flags: 26, replies: 97

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"WASHINGTON — New data from the Labor Department confirm what most middle-class Americans already know: Inflation is squeezing them.

As consumer prices rose by 4.1 percent last year, the highest rate since 1990, the prices of basic essentials such as food, gasoline and health insurance climbed far more steeply, explaining why so many Americans are telling pollsters that the economy is their chief concern.

Digging deeper into the data reveals, for example, that the price of bread rose 7.4 percent last year, almost twice the rate of inflation.

"(visit the link for the full news article)

[edit on 17-1-2008 by SEEWWHATUDO]

Link to thread: ...thread327504/pg1

I have a signal

Created by: Hello123456 on January 13, flags: 25, replies: 86

ATS we have a signal Im sure who do I contact and notify though to tell I have a signal Im unsure what to do.

Link to thread: ...thread326729/pg1

Study: Bush, Other Officials Issued Hundreds of False Statements Before Iraq Invasion

Created by: TrueAmerican on January 22, flags: 25, replies: 117

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"A study by two nonprofit journalism organizations found that President Bush and top administration officials issued hundreds of false statements about the national security threat from Iraq in the two years following the 2001 terrorist attacks.

The study concluded that the statements "were part of an orchestrated campaign that effectively galvanized public opinion and, in the process, led the nation to war under decidedly false pretenses.""(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread328675/pg1

Strange objects hanging in night sky over Iraq

Created by: Alanjw72 on January 3, flags: 24, replies: 111

I just found this interesting clip filmed by U.S soldiers on patrol in Iraq, it shows a number of bright stationary objects just hanging in the night sky, the soldiers have'nt got a clue as to what they are, so it's obviously not the usual sight seen when patrolling at night, could it be natural phenomenon, it's interesting because you can clearly see a planet, moon, or star visible just above the objects, but these look nothing like the objects in question, any thoughts on what these streaks of light could be.

Link to thread: ...thread324586/pg1

Satellite image manipulating example

Created by: allMIGHTY on January 6, flags: 23, replies: 35
Hi ATS!

After my thread

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

i had the idea of making an example of altering satellite images.

On this example you can see how Groom Lake would look like without Area-51. :D

I completely painted out Area-51. Sure it is probably not perfect but i only worked about 10-15 mins on it. Today's tools are making that very easy.

I'm a digital artist, so i'm probably a bit faster than other people.

Its made from the satellite imagery of Google Earth. Check it out!

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

For me it is really strange to look at the altered image, because i know that this image is wrong. ;)

For those who know this image inside-out, imagine that you see this image the first time. :P

So, it is super simple to manipulate satellite images. Even images from mars or the moon could be easily manipulated this way.

This makes me also thinking that they sometimes do a very bad job.

Like here: 37°37'51.82"N 116°52'32.44"W

:lol::lol::lol:

[edit on 6-1-2008 by allMIGHTY]

mod edit cap title

[edit on 1/6/2008 by kinglizard]

Link to thread: ...thread325113/pg1

My confession: I was taken to the Kuiper belt!

Created by: benign.psychosis on January 6, flags: 23, replies: 240

I was "abducted" before.

I used to get greys in my room all the time as a child, they would observe me while I slept - standing silently over me. This all happened when I was 7 and 8 years old. I was never paralyzed or had any type of control placed over by body. The first couple of times I was really scared, especially from seeing movies about aliens, and how they were always evil. After about the 3rd, maybe 4th time, I would just kinda "observe them back." I knew that they had no evil intentions, or I would already have been hurt. I can't tell you the feeling of gazing into those big, deep black eyes, but I'm sure some here can relate with me.

It all stopped, suddenly, and without warning. For years I had never had another encounter. The only thing they gave me was a symbolic message that they were here - that they were watching, that they were observing.

Some years later, when I was a young 19 year old man, I had another visit. This time, I wasn't scared - or apprehensive at all. As they stood there, looking upon me, I had a strange idea: I began to treat them as if they were small children, pointing at them and making funny faces to get reactions from them. I wanted to see if they understood humor, and I concluded that if they understood humor, then it would be the best way to communicate with each other because humor lacks fear and hostility. I recognized them as the same greys, but I never got any names lol. They really loved that kind of attention because they had never experienced it before from a human. They are not as cold as some people would have you believe, in fact, they seemed quite over-the-top jovial at times!

They seemed to like it, or were at least confused as to what I was doing. They would look at me, and then look at each other, making strange expressions that I could not understand. They seemed to communicate with each other for nearly 5 minutes without looking back over at me. I had no idea what they were doing. They later told me that most people are so scared of them, that they don't even bother trying to make contact with older humans anymore. They usually go for children, because they are more open minded. If you were visited as a child, you will probably be visited again when you are more mature. That's what it is, is contact. They told me that most people aren't ready, and it is evident by how frozen they become with fear, so they stick to children and revisit the children who they deem to have potential for contact.

So once a communication channel was open, I naturally asked about probing and sexual stimulation, and this was something that would not seem to have been done by these particular greys.

You will never believe this - They just don't understand!

They see our media, our television, and our porn, and some think that's a good way to say, "Hi, we are your friends. Enjoy this." They also told me how some groups of ETs implant people, or leave behind trace evidence as more of less of a prank from groups that prefer contact, but also view us as inferior beings with no potential. Much of what they told me completely shattered my preconceived ideas about them.

Anyway, as far as the abduction goes, it wasn't really an abduction. That word has some negative connotations to it. It was more like I asked to go with them for a little while, and they agreed to show me their ship.

The ship I went on was pretty remarkable, the whole body of the ship was invisible from the inside, but still visible from the outside. Really weird. No controls in the ship at all, just a few tables and seats. Although they may have been hiding the controls since they made two of the tables vanish and replaced them with a giant map of the solar system. I was shocked when I saw this, but also very grateful. They wouldn't explain any of the technology to me, but they showed me around, and we flew as far as the Kuiper belt, and then they brought me back to my house. They told me that there are mining operations going on in the kuiper belt like areas around most star systems, but they only mine those belts that don't contain the required elements for life to begin, as larger bodies would form anyway. Doing what they did is illegal under their laws, and it's only a small group that think contact is a good thing, while the majority of their species want to remain isolationists until other races are as ethically/morally and intellectually evolved as they are.

I don't expect anyone to believe this. Actually, I expect people not to believe this.. most people don't anyway, but I might as well post it. Oh yeah, I asked if they'd been visiting earth since ancient times, and they have. Their lifespans are incredibly long, usually living around 3000 years.

If anyone has any questions, please feel free to ask. I've made this post relatively short because I don't want to waste my time if no one is interested. This is something that I feel that I must reveal before I may be... declined to continue on.

Link to thread: ...thread325218/pg1

Corrupt U.S. Officials Sold Nuclear Weapons Secrets

Update: NEW Edmonds interview of 1/30

Created by: budski on January 7, flags: 23, replies: 62

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"A WHISTLEBLOWER has made a series of extraordinary claims about how corrupt government officials allowed Pakistan and other states to steal nuclear weapons secrets.

Sibel Edmonds, a 37-year-old former Turkish language translator for the FBI, listened into hundreds of sensitive intercepted conversations while based at the agency's Washington field office.

Link to thread: ...thread325270/pg1

Anyone else noticed increased police presence in their cities?

Created by: slackerwire on January 22, flags: 23, replies: 317

I live in Las Vegas, and there has been a noticeable increase in cops all over town in just the last week or 2 at most.

Anyone else finding this to be true?

Any idea why?

Link to thread: ...thread328477/pg1

UFOs Across The Timeline! Evidence Of Alien Presence?

Created by: mikesingh on January 2, flags: 22, replies: 67

Or Is It Pure Imagination and Myth?

It's not really post 1950s that UFO have been ubiquitous. They have even been shown in antique oil paintings, sculpture, and cave drawings, apart from government postage stamps, official space videos and the media. A couple of days ago, I even saw a live special program on TV on strange lights (Like the Phoenix lights) hovering over the beaches of Mumbai, India. I'm trying to get the footage, so I can post it here for discussion, as undoubtedly, ATS is the best place to do it!

That said, take a look at some examples of these UFO that have been shown since antiquity. Isn't this proof enough that the UFO phenomenon is real? Not just UFOs of earthly origin presumably made by black projects, but more importantly, UFOs of Alien origin!

So, is the UFO phenomenon a myth or is there an element of truth in it? Considering this huge, huge universe, it stands to reason that ETs are out there. If so, some very advanced cultures, probably millions of years ahead of us in technology, could have been visiting us from the dawn of civilization. Evidence?

The Evidence:

The Bible: Ezekiel

A supposed ancient record of extraterrestrial contact, is to be found in chapter I of Ezekiel, in which that prophet, in exile near Babylon, recounts a vision (Ezek. 1:4-28). Blumrich, a NASA rocket engineer, interpreted Ezekiel's description as a UFO. Below is a diagram of the 'spacecraft'. (Blumrich worked on the Saturn 5 rocket, the Lunar Lander and on Skylab.) However, as per the magazine, eSkeptic, what was described by Ezekiel were 'angels'! But could angels mean aliens in those days??

(visit the thread to view linked images)

A UFO as imagined in late Josef Blumrich's 1973 book, The Spaceships of Ezekiel (Bantam. ISBN 0553083783).

Courtesy: eSkeptic
Cave Paintings

(visit the thread to view linked images)

This cave painting is c.10,000 BC and is from Val Camonica, Italy. It appears to depict two beings in protective suits holding strange implements.

Courtesy: Crystalinks

(visit the thread to view linked images)

The Mayan Palenque "Spaceman" carving, still a puzzle for researchers. The intricate artwork depicts what appears to be someone at the controls of a machine (UFO?). This Color drawing is to clarify the intricate carvings.

Courtesy: onealclan

Coins

(visit the thread to view linked images)

French coin minted in 1680 that shows a hovering disc shaped UFO with what appears to be port holes.

Courtesy: Crystalinks

Paintings (15th Century Artwork)

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Painting of the Madonna and Saint Giovannino, in the Palazzo Vecchio in Florence. The upper right section of the painting shows an object in the sky, and below, a man and dog looking at the object.

Courtesy: ancientx

Stamps

(visit the thread to view linked images)

UFO stamps of the Komi Republic, Russia.

(visit the thread to view linked images)

A Soviet Union-1967-Stamp depicting a UFO and a satellite.

Courtesy: Spacestamps

Unidentified Objects: Tether Incident

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Zoomed image of one of the UFO's that swarmed around the Tether (STS-75).

Courtesy: Geocities.

(More images and footage can be found on Zorgon's web site 'TheLivingMoon')

These are just a few of the strange images out of the hundreds, but the idea was to show the omni-presence of UFOs and aliens across a broad spectrum of time. Is it all imagination? Why have governments printed stamps and coins of UFOs? What did the artists know about UFOs to have prompted them to include them in their paintings? And why?

Link to thread: ...thread324318/pg1

A letter from a Norwegian politician (2012)

Created by: ATSGUY on January 4, flags: 22, replies: 152

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"I am a Norwegian politician. I would like to say that difficult things will happen from the year 2008 till the year 2012.

The Norwegian government is building more and more underground bases and bunkers. When asked, they simply say that it is for the protection of the people of Norway. When I enquire when they are due to be finished, they reply "before 2011".

Israel is also doing the same and many other countries too."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread324705/pg1

Cancer Cause and Cure - Could it be this Simple?

Created by: Scott Creighton on January 18, flags: 22, replies: 99

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"According to this hypothesis based on years of scientific and clinical research, the cause of cancer is infection by a common fungus, Candida albicans. The good news is that it can be treated with a powerful antifungal agent that can't be patented."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread327733/pg1

Footage of E.T.'s at Area51?

Created by: Alpha1551 on January 20, flags: 22, replies: 219

Hi there!

Found this interesting footage at youtube (of course :@:), which supposedly depicts footage of E.T.'s at Area 51. It was posted by the user "351Nova" and states "smuggled out of Area 51". It was shot on an 8mm camera and depicts what seems to be 2 types of "greys" and a baby "grey". Now it's always possible, this is a fake but just thought it was interesting and would like to post it and hear some opinions on it.

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

There are 3 separate clips posted, one showing part 1 and another showing part 2 and a third showing the 2 clips together. Though the first part I'm sceptical about, the other part is the interesting one.

Essentially, to get to the heart of the matter (if it's real or not), one must know how to manipulate 8 mm camera footage etc.. If this footage has not been tampered with (though hard to tell when you don't have the original) there is (of course) always the possibility of dummies being used, though IMHO, intuitively, I sense this is real.

Anyway what do you guys make of it?

Btw, sorry if this has been discussed before.

[edit on 20-1-2008 by Alpha1551]

Link to thread: ...thread328191/pg1

Today we remember them all

Created by: infinite on January 27, flags: 22, replies: 29

I would much like this thread to remain respectful and no political baiting, or debating the meaning of the word "genocide". It's in memory of everyone who has died during times of genocides. Don't start saying "OMG!! you haven't mention them!!!"

Thank you

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Today is national holocaust day in the UK.

It's a time we remember not just the Jews, Catholics, Freemasons, gypsy's, homosexuals and others that were massacred by the Nazi's. But we remember others.

We remember the Rape of Nanking, in wich 300,000 Chinese were butchered by the Japanese during World War II.

We remember the hundreds and thousands of Armenian's and Assyrian's who died under the rule of the Ottoman Empire.

We remember those in Cambodia, Rwanda, Darfur, in the Former Yugoslavia.

The mass starvation in Ukraine by the Soviet Union.

The Croatian people in 1941-44.

The 200,000 people who were killed during the Guatemalan civil war.

The Sabra and Shatila massacre of 1982.

We don't remember some, we don't remember a few, but we remember all at ATS.

First they came for the Socialists, and I did not speak out - because I was not a Socialist. Then they came for the Trade Unionists, and I did not speak out - because I was not a Trade Unionist.

Then they came for the Jews, and I did not speak out - because I was not a Jew. Then they came for me - and there was no one left to speak for me.

Pastor Martin Niemöller (1892–1984)

United States Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, D.C.

Link to thread: ...thread329766/pg1

Brattleboro to vote on arresting Bush, Cheney

Created by: biggie smalls on January 28, flags: 22, replies: 72

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Brattleboro residents will vote at town meeting on whether President George Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney should be indicted and arrested for war crimes, perjury or obstruction of justice if they ever step foot in Vermont.

The Brattleboro Select Board voted 3-2 Friday to put the controversial item on the Town Meeting Day warning."(visit the link for the full news article)

Link to thread: ...thread330103/pg1

My New Years Challenge! Help me!

Created by: jasonjnelson on January 2, flags: 21, replies: 62

Happy New Year ATS!

I joined this community after 15 years of C2CAM, and I have been impressed with some people's intelligence, as well as the strength that can come from the numbers here. I NEED YOUR HELP!

I am tired of the UFO debate. I have seen them! three in my lifetime, and I have excellent notes on all three sightings This is not important. I am a sane, Marine Corps veteran, who is wanting to move the debate onward. Lets get the mainstream discussing why, not if! That is whats important. But we can never do this without excellent proof, right?

THIS IS MY CHALLENGE! READ BELOW!

I know that there are many 'experts' on this site. some real, others self-professed. However, through the various threads, I have noted that there are many who take sightings, evidence, video, etc., whatever, and break down the various hoaxes and such. I see the constant questions and advice on how to best prove it real or not. I want to have a solution, one for me and all those who may read this.

I will spend up to $750 on a camera this month. What do I need from you all? Tell me what to buy! what kind of shutter speeds, lenses, night vision, etc.! I will purchase this, and have it ready to go. I work many nights, and I say again, whether you believe me or not, that I have seen three UFO's, and had my Dad, the most honest man I know, tell me of another. So now lets get the proof right. let me get the right equipment! What will I do for you?

I need a senior admin on this site, or a poster with a long history on this site to agree, for one year only, to be my proof and liason. When I buy the 'correct' camera, one you all agree is correct, if i catch any photos, I will IMMEDIATLY send camera and all to the verifier. I am not looking for re-embursement, I will pay for all of it, as long as a moderator and three (3) Ats senior members can agree on that middle person. I will allow them to verify my identity, my computer contents, and any program i might have so that any 'Faking' is eliminated. I have practically no experience with the new cameras, but will accept all advice on product type, and I will send a copy of the sales reciepts to the agreed upon middle person.

This is my challene to ATS! All i need is a little time from some of you, and maybe 2008 will finally be the year! I encourage other members to follow my lead, because even my 2.0 MP camera phone isn't 'good' enough proof, and we NEED that proof, so this debate can move forward.

thanks agan for your time, Jason J Nelson, S.B., CA
Link to thread: ...thread324377/pg1

Church of Scientology being attacked

Created by: watch_the_rocks on January 22, flags: 21, replies: 186

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"Wikinews has learned that according to an internet posting made just over 24 hours ago, the Church of Scientology's website is being attacked by hackers, causing the site to shut down.

The attack was launched on Wednesday by a user calling himself "Anonymous", on the website "Project Chanology". The "History" section of the site explains, in a satirical fashion, that the incident was prompted by the Church of Scientology's attempts to remove a promotional video featuring Scientologist Tom Cruis"(visit the link for the full news article)

Related News Links:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Related AboveTopSecret.com Discussion Threads:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Link to thread: ...thread328702/pg1

"Strange Lights over San Diego" Video [1/1/08]

Created by: dEWBiE300E on January 4, flags: 20, replies: 36

Haven't seen anyone post this video. Just watch how the anchorman tries to cast a doubt on the viewers by saying "they looked like helicopters to me." I'm glad one of the witnesses was smart enough not to imply the lights disappeared over the horizon... wouldn't want another "phoenix lights were flares over the horizon" scenario.

(isit the thread to view linked videos)

[edit on 4-1-2008 by dEWBiE300E]

Link to thread: ...thread324782/pg1

Soviets Found Something ...

Created by: olegkvasa on January 12, flags: 20, replies: 103

Hi guys

Recently I found a site with high-res Soviet moon images on. (to check them out go to this thread: (links removed, visit the thread for external references))

After finally getting some time to look through them myself I came across a strange object in a photo taken by Lunokhod-1. I have marked it in red but it pretty much stands out for itself:

Cropped Image

Full Image:

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

Incuse some of you are thinking that its from the rover. Here are several images of the Luna-17 and the Lunokhod-1.

Lunokod-1 on display

Lunokod-1 mated with Luna-17

If you also look at the image you will see that there are NO tracks leading up to the object. If it fell off the rover, surely it would have been close to it. Im convinced that this object isn't from either vehicles.

But that leaves the question what is it, and where did it come from?

/rich :)

P.S I would like to nickname this object "the washing machine" will explain why later :D

[edit on 12-1-2008 by olegkvasa]

Link to thread: ...thread326449/pg1

"Staged Invasion to occur around August 2008", says Montuak Survivor

Created by: Im a Marty on January 21, flags: 20, replies: 149

Many years ago, I used to follow the work of Stewart Swerdlow, a claimed Montauk Survivor. Was quite heavily into it actually, met him 4 times, and developed a nice friendship with him, although we sort of drifted apart due to some issues that developed (another story). I still keep tabs of his work and communicate with him every few months. But this story I have not seen put on AboveTopSecret, and I believe it needs to be addressed.

From his news section on his website, he is stating that a staged alien invasion is to occur around August 2008, otherwise known as the 'peak' of project Greenstar, using Blue Beam technology. Also stated that whilst doing 'deep' Hyperspace work (Hyperspace is the realm/language of God which consists of color, tone, archetype), and the support of other psychics, there are 'huge' fleets of spaceships just outside of Kuipers Belt, ready to invade, for what purpose - its unknown.

The beings are supposedly from the Orion Confederation, Ohalu Council, and Hatona Councils, plus other types of beings.

The real invasion may prevent the 'illuminati' from performing the Staged Invasion, which order it will play, is unknown.

There is a dedicated 'Hyperspace' forum on the internet which has 10 pages worth of information on the 'Kuiper Belt Aliens' written about by followers of Stewart, as well as other psychics who use his techniques for contact with some of the beings out there.

He has also stated that Comet Holmes (name?) plus other 'objects' projected near earth are 'warning' to the controllers of the planet.

Thought you may be interested in this information as its quite 'revealing' to say the least :)

Thx

Link to thread: ...thread328442/pg1

Indigo Boy From Mars!! A Must Read!

Created by: mikesingh on January 26, flags: 20, replies: 60

Today I received an alert from Project Camelot about a fascinating article now available in English written by the noted Russian writer, University Professor and researcher, Gennady Belimov, who was present at the camp where Boriska, the boy from Mars, spoke of his experiences several years ago.

(visit the thread to view linked images)

Boriska.

Courtesy: Project Camelot

According to the article, the translation is currently 50% complete and they hope to post the entire article within a few days.

"Imagine, when everyone was sitting around the bonfire in the evening, this little boy, about seven years old, suddenly and loudly demanded silence: he was going to tell us about the inhabitants of Mars and about their trips to Earth."

The round faced child with the big eyes, in a summer T-shirt and a cool baseball cap, completely unafraid of the adults, began an unbelievable story. About the Martian civilization, about megalith-cities and Martian space ships, about flights to other planets, and about the country of Lemuria on Earth, about the life of which he knew personally, having at some point flown here from Mars to this huge continent in the middle of the ocean and had friends there...

Boriska announced that he use to live on Mars, and that the planet was habitable, but that it survived the worst catastrophe in its history, the loss of its atmosphere, and now a few remaining inhabitants live in underground cities. At that time he often flew to the Earth on trade and scientific research missions. It would seem that he himself was a pilot of a space vessel. This was at the time of the Lemurian civilization, and he had a Lemurian friend, who died before his eyes...

"A huge catastrophe happened on Earth, where mountains exploded and a huge continent broke apart and sunk under the water, and all of a sudden a huge stone fell on the building where my friend was," reported Boriska. "I couldn't save him. And now on Earth we should meet again..."

(links removed, visit the thread for external references)

"

Now what does one make of this? Seems to be in the realm of science fiction. But who knows? And what if it's true?

Also:

Link to thread: ...thread329525/pg1

Breaking News! The re-count is on!

Created by: Black_Fox on January 10, flags: 19, replies: 46
Great news!

Only shame is Ron Paul should have signed on for this.

Either way its good to see someone demanding a re-count.

"(Dennis4President)-Kucinich asks for New Hampshire recount in the interest of election integrity DETROIT, MI – Democratic Presidential candidate Dennis Kucinich, the most outspoken advocate in the Presidential field and in Congress for election integrity, paper-ballot elections, and campaign finance reform, has sent a letter to the New Hampshire Secretary of State asking for a recount of Tuesday's election because of "unexplained disparities between hand-counted ballots and machine-counted ballots." "

Ful story here

MOD EDIT: Fixed Caps in title.

[edit on 1/11/2008 by thelibra]

Link to thread: ...thread326122/pg1

Stephenville, Texas UFO Witness Ricky Sorrells Audio Interview (MUST LISTEN!)

Created by: ufo reality on January 19, flags: 19, replies: 31

This testimony is amazing. We need answers from the Air Force. Multiple football field sized UFOs in the sky and we don't get answers?! Helicopters and jets seen.

We must keep the heat on the Air Force! All of us at ATS need to come together and demand answers. The time is now! Don't be apathetic!

Interview by Linda Howe from www.earthfiles.com

:wow: :puz:

[edit on 19-1-2008 by ufo reality]

Link to thread: ...thread328036/pg1

What happens when you combine the brains behind
Oliver Stone's JFK movie and the Internet's largest and most popular conspiracy theory web site?

As author and reviewer Andy Lloyd says,
you get the “Encyclopedia Conspiratoria!”

$19.95 in fine bookstores everywhere.

Visit the link below for more information, and to purchase online:

<http://www.abovetopsecret.com/abovetopsecret.html>